CONGRESSMAN CASEY, Democrat from Pennsylvania, says 5,000,000 men are idle in the United States, and government should invest the Treasury surplus in the Colorado Dam, regulating Mississippi floods, and supplying other work for the idle.

GOVERNMENT figures do not confirm Mr. Casey's 5,000,000 estimate.

But government money should build the Boulder Dam and make the Mississippi safe, not merely provide work for the idle, of whom few can work in concrete and stone, but to do work that the nation needs.

AS FOR unemployment, that should be the government's principal business. The country owes no man a living, but does owe every man a chance to work.

In financial emergency, government helps through the Federal Reserve. That institution makes financial panics impossible.

Government should find a way to make labor panics impossible. Such panics are more important than financial panics, for they involve worry for mothers, and want for children.

GOV. AL SMITH of New York sets a good example, telling his representatives to report all possibilities of using public monies in necessary public works, to meet lack of employment.

Republicans should remember that they will be hearing from Mr. Smith next November.

CALIFORNIA is the country of original advertising and warnings. Approaching a bad turn, at a railroad crossing, you read "Prepare to Meet Thy God."

A restaurant sign says "Two places to eat, here and home."

Intelligent Mrs. B., who observes as she goes, reports this sign, on the way to the Huntington Hotel in Pasadena, "Two things to hang, Hickman and our wall paper."

SUCH advertising, except the religious one, is bad advertising, taking your mind from the thing advertised. Reference to Hickman the murderer takes the mind off wall paper.

SECRETARY HOOVER'S statement on prohibition must not be interpreted as expressing satisfaction with prohibition as it is. Mr. Hoover says the "great social and economic experiment, noble in motive—must be worked out CONSTRUCTIVELY."

Room for improvement is suggested in that word CONSTRUCTIVELY.

At present, unfortunately, with bootleggers, hijackers, drug fiends, well organized crime and wholesale bribery of officials, prohibition works out organized DESTRUCTIVELY.

KING AMANULLAH of Afghanistan owns a flying machine, carrying nine passengers, pilot and radio operator.

One machine for a "dummy" king of Afghanistan means nothing. But ten thousand faster machines, owned by Asiatics that once traveled westward on little ponies might mean a great deal to Western Europe and this well satisfied continent.

MR. W. C. BUSBEE of Modesto, Cal., is the father of 20 children, including a small girl one day old. His first wife who died in 1907, had 13 children. His second wife has seven. Mr. Busbee says he believes in big families. The mother of the 13 says nothing.

HELEN WILLS went to one prize fight and says she will never go to another. Many that appreciate her value as an example to young people, would have been glad, had she not gone to the first prize fight.

AUTOMOBILE speed contests, with blazing cars plunging or rolling into the ocean, do not help the motor industry or sell cars. Racing cars are specially built, and represent no article for sale. They attain speeds worthless in real motoring. And what is more important to manufacturers they frighten fathers and mothers who say, "I would not want my children to have a car of that kind."

$133,000 STOLEN IN TRAIN HOLDUP

Blast Pay Car

By International News Service.

EVERGREEN PARK, Ill., Feb. 25.—Six bandits, armed with shotguns and charges of dynamite, swarmed over a Grand Trunk Railroad train here today, lined up all baggage and mail car employes along the right of way, set a powerful dynamite charge which blew to pieces the end of an express car, and after a running gun battle with police escaped with $133,000 in cash.

When the blast roared two of the bandits dashed into the wrecked car, seized bags of registered mail, containing payrolls for large industrial concerns in northern Indiana, and tossed them through the smoke to their companions who waited alongside in a high-powered motor car.

BLAST DRAWS POLICE

Noise of the explosion, which was heard for miles, brought police to the scene as the last sack was hurled into the roaring automobile.

The chief of police and one other officer opened fire as the bandit car got under way. The bandits returned the hail of bullets from their sawed-off shotguns.

The robbers' automobile soon out-distanced the decrepit machine of the police department and sped toward Blue Island, Ill.

The same train, containing almost a like amount of money, was held up by bandits at the same place two years ago.

The train, No. 10, which left Chicago at 7:45 a. m., bound for Port Huron, Mich., was known as the "payroll train" because of the heavy sums of money it carried.

A quick checkup of the amount of money contained in the baggage car revealed that the bandits had $133,000, overlooking $200,000 in another baggage car.

OPERATORS GET PROBE INNING

Senators Told Amazing Story of Despotism —Murder Kept Silent.

Coal operators are having their inning today in the investigation of the strike by the United States Senate. Under the guidance of J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, largest bituminous producer in the country, the four members of the Senate sub-committee—Senators Frank R. Gooding, of Idaho, chairman; Robert F. Wagner, of New York; W. B. Pine, of Oklahoma, and Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana—left during the morning for a tour of several of the company's mines in Fayette county.

The officers of the United Mine Workers—Philip Murray, international vice president, and Patrick T. Fagan, president of District No. 5—who accompanied and guided the senators on Thursday and Friday, are not with the party today. The operators are to be afforded a chance to present their case, free from any possibility of being embarrassed by the presence of the union officials.

The Pittsburgh Coal Company's miners have been on strike since August 15, 1925, when the company, it is alleged, broke its wage agreement with the union, which most of the other operators kept until its expiration on April 1, 1927. Murray has charged that if the Pittsburgh Coal Company had not violated its contract there would have been no strike.

That armed guards of the coal companies, hired by them and responsible only to their employers, have usurped the police power of the state, was charged by striking miners of the Pittsburgh Coal Company and other citizens of Moon Run, and practically admitted by the company's coal and iron police

NEW DRUG IS THREAT TO NATION'S YOUTH

This is the sixth of a series of articles by Winifred Black, exposing conditions resulting from wholesale, uncurbed sale of "dope" in the United States.

These articles are being printed in connection with Narcotic Education Week.

Marijuana—that's the Spanish or Mexican name of the new drug that is a brand new threat to the youth of our country.

Some call it American hemp.

In India, they make a powerful drug out of the hemp that grows there. This drug is called hasheesh and in India they eat it and they smoke it and they inhale it.

WINIFRED BLACK

And the man under the influence of hasheesh catches up his knife and runs through the streets hacking and killing every one he meets. No, he has no special grievance against mankind. When he is himself he is probably a good humored, harmless, well-meaning creature, but hasheesh is the murder drug, and it is the hasheesh which makes him pick up his knife and start out to kill.

Marijuana is American hasheesh. It is made from a little weed

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 25.—Mrs. Max Riedman was severely bitten on the hip by a German police dog as she walked along the street last night.

Fifty Flee Sharon Fire

SHARON, Pa., Feb. 25.—The Shenango House, oldest hostelry in the city, was destroyed by fire, which swept a block here early this morning entailing a loss of $250,000. Twenty-five guests and a similar number of employes fled from the building, after being aroused by Patrolmen Donald Scott and Dewey Miller, who went through smoke filled halls to arouse all inmates.

Six storerooms on the first floor on the State street frontage were destroyed with all their contents—the Shenango station ry shop, Minette shop, women's wear; Sweetland confectionery, Maxwell department store, Flowers real estate office and King brothers' barber shop.

Anna Paulo, 22, waitress, has not been accounted for. She told other employes she was going to Pittsburgh last night. The fire was discovered by Nick Avron, janitor, who was almost suffocated before he escaped from the basement and sounded the alarm. The hotel formerly was managed by Thomas Boyle, owner of the property but recently it has been conducted by William Berger. The fact that it was Saturday was responsible for the small number of guests, commercial travelers going home on Friday night.

PITTSBURGH WINS LAKE CARGO CASE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Reduction in lake cargo coal rates from West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia, which railroads voluntarily offered to make effective last August, were rejected today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The decision is considered a victory for Pittsburgh coal producers, who opposed such a reduction on the grounds that it would be inequitable.

The Chesapeake and Ohio, Norfolk and Western and Louisville and Nashville railroads, which tendered a cut of 20 cents per ton on lake cargo coal from the southern territory, were ordered to maintain their existing schedules, and their action in offering to make the cut was described as "a challenge to the power of this commission to prescribe just and reasonable charges for the transportation of traffic."

Today's decision came just at the close of hearings by a Senate committee on the renomination of John J. Esch, of Wisconsin, as a member of the commission, during which senators representing the southern producing states assailed the commission for its course in the lake rate controversy.

It was the fourth ruling by the commission touching the controversy between the southern mining territory on one hand and the competing industries in the Pittsburgh district and Ohio on the other.

Early last year the commission reduced the lake cargo rates from Ohio and Pennsylvania mines 20 cents per ton and simultaneously declared that railroads serving the southern mines would not be justified in cutting their rates. In the face of this declaration, the three principal coal carrying roads tendered the reduction seeking to make them effective August 28 last, with the object of restoring the old relationship between the northern and the southern territory. The commission suspended the southern cut and investigated the situation again.

FAMILY ILL FORCED TO VACATE

United State Senators investigating coal strike conditions here saw a strong man moved to tears yesterday. They heard his tearful story of his wife's death a few days after her eviction from their comfortable home at Harmarville and displayed marked interest as the saddened husband unfolded his tale of misery.

The man was Joseph Lubresky of Acmetonia, father of two girls and a boy, the eldest being 19. He started in upon request of Senator Frank H. Gooding, chairman, by telling of their comfortable home at Harmarville.

"We lived happily in a company house until the strike. Then our troubles started, for I had no job and consequently no pay. We managed to get along, however, until dark clouds appeared on the horizon with the coming of winter.

"We were told we would have to vacate our home along with the other union families at Harmarville. Our union planned to build barracks and I helped every day. It was here that I caught cold during the first part of December and my wife fell sick, too. We were both in a bad way when the company police told us we would have to get ready to move out. Both of us were in bed.

"My oldest daughter, Helen, explained to the deputy sheriffs who served the papers that my wife and I were sick in bed and asked that we be given a little more time."

At this point of Lubresky's testimony, he broke down and sobbed bitterly. The Senators were moved perceptibly. Their questions stopped and they looked at one another in askance. It was but a moment, however, until Lubresky continued.

"Neighbors carried my wife and myself out into the cold. They brought us here in this place with only a small stove to keep us warm. The place was draughty and it was impossible to keep it heated. My wife died of pneumonia."

"Did the people who caused your eviction know of y[our] condition?" asked Re[presentative] after Lubresky ha[d]

"Yes," he replied.

"What did the [doctor] say?"

"We had no doctor. We couldn't get one."

With this brief explanation, the committee turned their inve[sti]gation into matters pertaining [to] relief and the activities of the Sylvania and Ohio Miners' Re[lief] so-called I. W. W. organization.

Lubresky said he had received aid from this organization, but he was unable to throw any light on its activities or any of its personnel.

SENATORS DELVE INTO KINLOCH BLAST

FIND NEW MEN NOT CAUSE

Inexperienced miners were not the cause of Monday night's fatal explosion at the Kinloch mine of the Valley Camp Coal Company, members of the United States Senate strike investigation committee learned yesterday. Officials of the company produced records to show that all of the 10 non-union men who were killed in their mine had from three to 12 years' experience. Most of the victims were Negroes.

"What caused the explosion?" asked Senator Frank R. Gooding, chairman.

"We don't know," answered the Kinloch superintendent, John Schweinberg.

"How much damage was done?" was the next query.

PRESSED FOR ANSWER

Schweinsberg hesitated a bit and Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, pressed him to estimate the area affected by the blast.

"Well, I guess it tore through the main heading about a half mile," the superintendent said.

"How many men were working in the mine?"

"Twenty."

"How many men work on the regular day force?" asked Wheeler.

"Four hundred, fifty."

"If the explosion had occurred in the daytime, how many men might have been killed, all of them?" asked Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York.

"No, possibly only about 100 would have been working in the section affected by the explosion."

"Was the mine inspected regularly?" was Gooding's next question.

"Yes."

"By whom?"

"By the boss."

"Did he inspect the mine the night of the explosion?"

"Yes."

"Where is he now?"

"We buried him today," Schweinberg answered softly.

EXPERIENCE SHOWN

The question of the men's experience was brought up and records were produced by the superintendent to show that the "boss" had worked in mines for 12 years. One other man had been a miner for 12 years and another nine years, according to the records. The others had experience from three to eight years.

"How many men have you employed since the first of the year?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"Very few."

"How long have most of your present employes been working here?"

"From two to nine months," the superintendent answered.

A number of questions were put to Schweinsberg concerning costs of production and wages, but the superintendent referred the senators to the company's main office in Cleveland for that information. He did exhibit payrolls, however, which revealed that many of the non-union miners are drawing nothing on payday, whereas a few get as much as $9.68 to $35.18 every two weeks.

DEPUTY QUIZZED

Chief Deputy Sheriff E. M. Keppel was then called. He was questioned about where he got his orders, and the weapons he and his men carried. Chief Keppel is an old man and rather slow to answer.

"Have you had any trouble with strikers here?" Senator Gooding asked.

"Not much," was the reply.

"How many arrests have you made since the strike began?"

"A dozen or so."

"Have they been convicted?"

"No. Charges were never made against them in court. They were arrested only for disorderly conduct," the gray-haired deputy explained.

The Senators met Joseph Arkright, general manager of the company, but did not question him. They also met Sgt. Vincent T. Black, in charge of the state police detail, who was keeping tab on the picket line, but he was not asked to testify.

BRIDGE COMPANY WINS SUIT ON PROFIT TAX

Federal Judge W. H. S. Thomson, in an opinion filed yesterday, ruled in favor of the Pittsburgh Bridge and Iron Works, Inc., in a suit the concern brought against Internal Revenue Collector D. B. Heiner, to recover $13,674.97, alleged overpayment of income and profit taxes for 1917. The court ordered the sum to be paid with interest from September 8, 1923.

and mine officials at hearings held yesterday by the committee.

The senators, by their questions, showed amazement at testimony that coal and iron police, while never making a report to any state officers, claimed and exercised the right to make arrests anywhere in the county, regardless of whether the offenses charged had anything to do with their employers' business or not.

Murder Kept Secret

There was testimony that the coal and iron police intimidated, bullied and arrested the constable elected by the people of Moon Run and would not permit him to enter the camp in the performance of his duties.

The constable, Thomas Drexler, charged that the coal and iron police concealed a murder for 24 hours on the pretext that they hoped by maintaining secrecy to catch the murderer.

Witness after witness was interviewed, case after case was presented, of outrages and assaults committed by the company's guards on men, women and children on the public highways and in homes outside of the company's property.

This testimony was the salient feature of the day. Other outstanding developments were the refusal of H. M. White, division manager of the company, to answer a question as to the cost of producing coal, Joseph Lubresky's story of the eviction of his dying wife from a coal company house at Harmarville, the development of evidence concerning the activities of radical labor organizations in the strike, and the senators' inquiry at Kinloch into the explosion there last Monday which caused the death of 10 strikebreakers.

James Dinsdale, chief of pickets at Moon Run, presented the witnesses at the hearing there. One man after another came forward, exhibited scars, and told sickening stories of being blackjacked and manhandled by coal and iron police—according to the witnesses' version, for nothing at all. One boy testified that he had been shot in the leg.

Most dramatic of the recitals was that of Mrs. Mary Kauchick, proprietress of the cross-roads store where the hearing was held. She said that John Noose and Stephen Misti, coal and iron police, rushed into the store, with drawn revolvers, on the morning of September 16, last, in search of Dinsdale and Constable Drexler. Mrs. Kauchick's three children, terrified, started to cry, and she remonstrated with the officers. Noose, she averred, stuck his revolver in her daughter's side and pushed her out of the way. Mrs. Kauchick told him there was danger that the pistol might go off and kill her daughter.

"I don't give a damn who I kill or where I go," Noose answered, according to the witness.

The father of Mrs. Elizabeth Drexler, a tenant, lay dying upstairs. He had not been out of bed for months. Terrified by the uproar, he got out of bed, but from that time on he was as helpless as a baby and soon afterward died. Mrs. Drexler took the stand and corroborated Mrs. Kauchick's story.

Dinsdale stated that an investigation disclosed that while Noose wore a uniform and acted as a coal and iron officer he was not commissioned.

Dinsdale accused Margaret M. Morgan, justice of the peace at Sewickley, of concealing coal and iron police on whom it was desired to serve warrants.

Transferring the hearing to the Pittsburgh Coal Company's Moon Run office, the senators summoned and grilled Sergt. M. M. Akers, of the coal and iron police. He was an unwilling witness and evaded answering questions by saying he did not know or could not remember.

Asked how many arrests he had made during the past year, he said he had no idea.

"Give us a rough estimate," said Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York. "Was it 5, 10, 20 or a hundred?"

"I have no idea," was the response.

"How many times have you appeared before a justice of the peace as a complainant?"

"I can't remember."

Authority Challenged

At the outset he declared his commission entitled him to make arrests anywhere in the county for any offense, although he was held answerable only to the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

But under the cross-examination of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, he hesitated, fidgeted and hedged to such an extent that Senator Wagner sternly said:

"You're exercising authority. Isn't it important that you know what your authority is?"

Akers said he at one time had been a state trooper, but received higher pay as a coal and iron policeman.

C. A. McDowell, safety and personnel manager of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, testified that the coal and iron police are paid $160 a month and are furnished room and board and provided with automobiles.

McDowell was questioned at length concerning the company's employes. Between 40 and 50 per cent of the strikebreakers are Negroes, he said, and 15 per cent are obtained through employment agencies. There were no Negroes in the mine before the strike. The labor turnover in January was 17 per cent, McDowell said.

The senators went over the payrolls of the company, which showed that since the strike went into effect the non-union miners frequently drew no money on payday because all their earnings went to pay their debts at the company's store. It was stated, however, that the average net earnings for the two-week period ended February 15 were $25.

Couldn't Sell at Profit

Division Manager White was asked why the company had shut down all of its 30 mines some months before it broke its wage contract with the United Mine Workers.

"Was it for the purpose," asked Senator Gooding, "of preparing the way for the abrogation of the Jacksonville agreement?"

"No," said White, "it was because the company was unable at that time to sell coal at a profit."

"Isn't it remarkable," said Senator Gooding, "that 30 mines were closed down in midwinter? Did that ever occur before at any time in the history of your company?"

"Yes, we have had them all down before—for example, when navigation ceased on the Great Lakes, in November."

"Who supplied the great Pittsburgh market when you were closed?"

"I don't know."

"What did it cost you to produce coal at that time?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"I don't care to answer," said White.

Refuses Information

"Can you answer?"

"Yes, I can, but I don't care to."

"Don't you know that the Senate committee will require an answer?"

"Yes, and an answer will be forthcoming at the proper time."

"Have you been instructed not to answer?"

"No, I have taken it upon myself."

"Why do you hesitate?"

"Because we have a department that handles such matters."

"But if you know it, why not tell us, and have it over with?"

"It isn't customary to give out to the public the cost of production."

"Well, it isn't customary," said Senator Gooding, "for the senate to make an investigation, either."

But White remained obdurate.

After luncheon at McKees Rocks the senators went to Acmetonia, where they were given a poignant description of the suffering of the families of striking miners who have been evicted from the company houses and compelled to take refuge in hastily constructed barracks. Joseph Lubresky, who was interviewed in his shack, told the story and wept during the telling.

Sick Family Evicted

Though he was ill, and his wife dying of pneumonia, they were compelled to vacate their home nine day before Christmas. Unable to walk, they were wrapped in blanket, and carried by friends to the barracks and placed in a room where there was not even a stove. Lubresky's aged mother and his three children accompanied them. Four days later Mrs. Lubresky died.

Senator Gooding asked Lubresky how he managed to maintain his family. He answered that he received $2.50 a week from the United Mine Workers and had also been supplied with groceries by the Pennsylvania-Ohio Miners' Relief Committee.

Testimony was given that the Pennsylvania-Ohio Relief Committee is a radical organization which advocates mass picketing, disregard of injunctions, government ownership of mines, and general strikes, and which co-operates more or less with the Industrial Workers of the World.

The Pennsylvania-Ohio Relief Committee is supported by the Emergency Strikers' Relief Committee of New York, of which Norman Thomas, Susanna Paxton, John Dos Passos, Sherwood Eddy, Amos Pinchot, Oswald Garrison Villard and Samuel Untermyer were said to be members.

Senators Wagner and Wheeler suggested that some of the members of the New York committee were probably not aware of the character of the organization to which they are sending funds.

The senatorial committee closed the day's tour with a visit to Kinloch, where 10 strikebreakers were killed in a mine explosion last Monday. The senators inquired into the record of each of the victims. All were experienced miners, they were told.

As the party returned to Pittsburgh Senator Gooding, discussing the day's proceedings, said:

"The first big problem here is our citizenship, and when that is demoralized there is not much left to our civilization."

OPERATORS SAY 'FRAME-UP'

oath before the Senate investigating committee."

"Most of the charges of brutality, vice and corruption are false. In every other case they can be refuted with the facts," Mr. Baker asserted, emphasizing that no effort will be made to "try the case in the newspapers."

"We have not a press agent nor anyone hired to hand out statements to the press," he declared. "I don't know how they do it," he added, "but either from newspaper policy or from 'friendly newspapermen' the union propaganda has produced not only innumerable misstatements of fact, but actual faked stories and pictures."

He pointed to stories and pictures before him, clipped from newspapers.

"Have you seen a 'faked' picture in the Pittsburgh Sun Telegraph?" Mr. Baker was asked.

"Oh, no no!" he answered.

"Have you seen a 'faked' story in the Sun Telegraph?" the reporter inquired.

"No," he replied.

Mr. Baker expressed resentment at statements from union officials, "prominently displayed in newspapers" which declared that the operators had broken their wage agreement with the union. He pointed out that the Pittsburgh Terminal had carried out the Jacksonville scale agreement until it expired last April 27 "even though it entailed a loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars to the company."

The inclusion of four mine union officials in the group which accompanied four United States senators on a tour of Pittsburgh Terminal properties Thursday brought another strong protest from Mr. Baker. The four union men were Philip T. Murray, international vice president, United Mine Workers of America; Patrick Fagan, president, District No. 5, mine workers; Earl E. Houck, union attorney, and William Collins, organizer for the American Federation of Labor.

"These men went over our protest, without invitation, and by a violation of all ethics," Mr. Baker declared. "They went for no other purpose than to find material there which they can use to bombard us with later. When it was first reported that they wished to go on the tour I protested, but at the request of the Senate committee, I was forced to accede to their demand, which is a gross injustice to us.

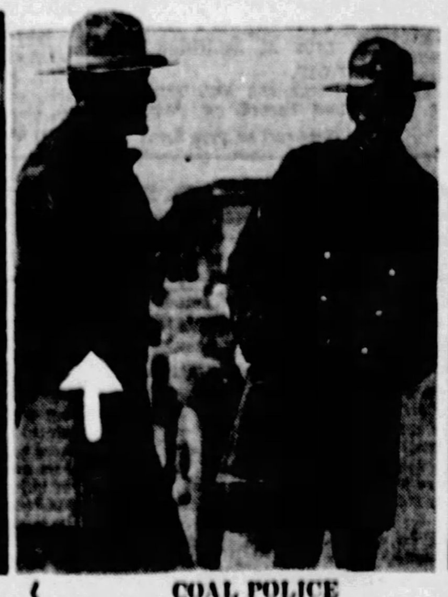
"After my protest I was informed that only Murray would go, yet actually he took along these other men, who not only acted as though members of the Senate committee, but actually interposed themselves into the investigation and asked questions of witnesses.

"Phil Murray," Mr. Baker added, "will never be allowed on our property again except as an employe of the company. We are running on an open shop business and will continue to do so as long as we are in business. By that I do not mean that we will bar any union man from working. But we will not deal with walking delegates of the union, we will not submit to the 'check-off' and we will not pay wages that make it impossible for us to continue in business."

BANDITS STICK UP CONFECTIONERY; GET $16

Forced to stand aside by two armed holdup men who entered her confectionery store last night, Mrs. Lena Scheidter of 109 South Twenty-second street, watched the gunmen rifle the cash register of $16. Descriptions of the bandits were given police of the South Side station.

PROBERS' QUESTIONS -:- ARE IGNORED -:- BY MINE OFFICIAL



REFUSES INFORMATION

When Senator Gooding asked H. M. White, division manager for the Pittsburgh Coal Company (arrow), how much it cost the company to produce its coal, he refused to answer. Senator Gooding advised him he probably would have to answer the question, to which Mr. White said, "I'll probably be able to give it to you at the proper time." The tilt occurred in the company's office at the Moon Run mine yesterday.

COAL POLICE

Senator Wagner took special interest in the authority exercised by the Coal and Iron police and questioned Sergt. M. M. Akers, in charge of the Moon Run force of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, but the armed mine police head had no clear idea about his status and the Senator easily confused him.

CURRY GREETS INVESTIGATORS

The whole town turned out to greet the Senators when they visited union barracks at Curry and many had tales of misery and suffering for the investigators' ears. The committee visited a number of the union barracks and asked many questions regarding living conditions and the treatment from Coal and Iron police.

JAMES DINSDALE

As a union picket at Moon Run, James Dinsdale gave lengthy testimony to the Senate committee yesterday.

DESCRIBE STRIKE HORRORS

Statements were obtained from Mrs. Mary Kauchick, proprietor of a store at Moon Run, regarding alleged brutality of Coal and Iron police who ran through her place of business brandishing revolvers and knocking her and her small children out of the way. Mrs. Thomas Drexler, wife of Constable Drexler, of Moon Run, also told a harrowing tale of a fight staged in her home by Coal and Iron police of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, at Moon Run, which hastened the death of her bed-ridden father.

DOUGLAS FINALLY DOES IT

AFTER LONG WAIT

Pedestrians, who for several months past have been compelled to traverse only one side of Grant street and Sixth avenue, now may crowd close to the new annex being erected at the William Penn Hotel without danger of being "beaned" by a steel girder or caressed with a cluster of hot rivets. Covered walks finally have been erected by John Douglas, Jr., contractor, after he was threatened with prosecution by the city Public Safety Department for ignoring two previous orders.

13 OF 125 MINERS DEAD IN EXPLOSION

JINNY LIND, Ark., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Its losses counted up, this little mining community today was mourning its 13 dead—victims of a gas explosion in the tunnel of a coal shaft.

Every one of the 125 who were working within reach of the fatal explosion and its fumes was accounted for and only one of these was injured. Among the dead were the nephew of the mine superintendent and the pit boss.

The total list of dead:

DARCY TEMPLETON, nephew of Supt. W. E. Templeton.

VALETINE BERSEACK, pitt boss.

JOE SODAR, FOREST RIBBS, JOHN KOSMATINE, WALTER CHAPPLE, of Jenny Lind.

EDGAR WESTMORELAND, WISE BROWN, JAMES KIMBERLING, LEWIS MOHR, of Bonanza.

FRANK DURROTT, of Tahona, Okla.

CHARLES NEWMAN, of Windsor, Mo.

JACK WILLIAMS, also a Missourian, who entered the mine for the first time.

Tony Fiddler, of Jenny Lind, was burned about the head.

Led by Claud Spiegel, state mine inspector, rescue crews worked all through yesterday until late in the night, clearing tunnels and bringing out bodies, until the last was accounted for.

BLACKHAND FOILS POLICE TRAP

Eight county sleuths and three Mt. Lebanon township police allowed a cultured Blackhander to slip through their fingers last midnight.

The Mt. Lebanon chief of police, Charles G. Baldwin, told the story today. It differed substantially from the first announcement that a mere passing motorist had fired several shots at the chief. The chief's story was this:

Last week Rocco Cipriana, well-to-do Mt. Lebanon realtor, and president of a Grant street employment agency, received a well-written blackhand letter which demanded $25,000—or "harm to you and your family."

Yesterday a pleasant, cultured voice informed Cipriana by telephone to be at Bower Hill and Cochran roads with the money at midnight. A Chevrolet coach was to pass and Cipriana was to hand over the money to the driver.

Cipriana wasn't there. But Chief Baldwin, dressed in Cipriana's clothes, was, and 100 yards away, concealed in the brush, were eight county detectives armed with shotguns. Down the road a short distance were two of Baldwin's motorcycle police, who had orders to show themselves when they heard shooting.

The car arrived, a door was opened and Baldwin passed in a bundle of newspaper clippings. Blackhander and police chief looked hard at each other. The Blackhander pulled a revolver and stepped on the gas. The chief fired. The Blackhander returned the fire as the car gathered speed, the chief firing back in turn.

The county sleuths, helpless because of the premature firing, ran to their own auto to pursue the Blackhander, but he had a fine start and is still going.

FACES ARREST IN MARATHON DANCE

Undaunted by the fact that he must face a hearing on a charge of permitting dancing after 1 a. m. in connection with the Marathon dance contest staged this week, Milton Crandall, manager of Danceland, is now making plans for another contest to be held next month.

He was notified yesterday to appear before Alderman Patrick Cawley, Wednesday, to face the charge which was preferred by Dr. Charles W. Collins, of the Children's Service Bureau.

Crandall also is checking reports that the winners of the contest, Albert Bonach, 22, and Marianne Jaque, both of 320 Thirty-seventh street, did not make a new world's record by dancing 61 hours and 54 minutes. He sent telegrams to many cities through the country to learn the records on other similar contests held and also sent a cablegram to Tangiers, Morocco, for details on the test of C. Nicholas, a French grocer, who is reported to have danced 266 consecutive hours.

MAN REPAIRING ROOF FALLS OFF, INJURED

Physicians of St. Francis Hospital today said that Lawrence Smithhammer, 37, of 323 Forty-fourth street, who fell off a porch roof at the rear of his home last night, was in a serious condition. Smithhammer slipped while repairing the roof. He suffered a fracture of the skull.

Hid Profit; Sussman Is Fined

For failure to include profits alleged to have been made in bootlegging in his income tax report, Samuel Sussman, member of the firm of Sussman Brothers, burlap bag manufacturers, of 135 Washington place, was fined $2,500, paroled for 18 months and placed under a $40,000 bond in Federal Court today.

Sussman pleaded guilty to an indictment returned January 25 charging evasion of income taxes for 1924, 1925 and 1926. In that period he is alleged to have evaded taxes amounting to about $20,000. Besides paying that amount, he must pay a 50 per cent penalty for fraud, totaling approximately $30,000.

R. W. Osler, special agent of the Intelligence unit of the Treasury Department, testified that an investigation revealed the profits were from bootlegging activities, and from investments made with bootlegging profits.

POLICE LOSE TRAIL OF "TORCH" KILLER

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Hope for an early solution of the murder of Miss Margaret Brown, 40-year-old governess, whose oil-drenched, flame-wrapped body was found late Monday night on a lonely stretch of road near Morristown, N. J., sank to a lower level today with the failure of the authorities to make an arrest which yesterday they had indicated was imminent.

Conflicting statements as to the possibility of the arrest of the "torch slayer" were made by New Jersey and New York officials. The statement of Capt. John J. Lamb, of the New Jersey state police, that the authorities know the identity of the murderer were offset by denials by Prosecutor Francis L. Bergen, of Somerset county, N. J., and Deputy Inspector Carey, of New York's Homicide Bureau. They denied that suspicion centered upon any individual.

"If we knew who killed Margaret Brown we could go and get him," said Inspector Carey.

These denials, however, did not jibe with the eagerness with which the police pounced upon any scrap of information concerning the man known as "doctor," who knew Miss Brown well, used to meet her in Central Park when she was governess of a Park avenue family, frequently took her for automobile rides and who cannot be found now.

The mysterious "doctor" was being sought on all sides today. He is believed to be the key to the crime. This man had an office in New Jersey, the police were told, or else he was employed in some hospital or sanitarium in the northern part of New Jersey.

A woman, whose name is withheld, informed the authorities she knew the "doctor" and Miss Brown and that she had seen them at road houses and amusement places in New Jersey.

Cold Wave To Hold Over

A wintry week-end was in prospect today with the temperature slated to repeat this morning's flop to 11 degrees, with a possibility of light snow. The low point was reached at 8 a. m.

The snow is expected to sweep in as the fling from a severe storm which was marked by heavy rains today along the South Atlantic coast.

The frigidity coming out of the west is hanging on and low temperatures were recorded today to the plains states. "Not quite so cold Sunday," was the only balm Forecaster W. S. Brotzman could offer Pittsburghers.

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

Samuel Goldwyn to Borrow Victor Fleming to Direct New Picture Starring Vilma Banky

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.

VILMA BANKY and Rod LaRocque are not to realize their cherished ambition to co-star. At least, not immediately. Vilma cannot be spared by Samuel Goldwyn and Cecil DeMille has other plans for Rod LaRocque. That's the trouble in being important.

Samuel Goldwyn has arranged with Paramount to borrow Victor Fleming, one of their prize directors, to direct Miss Banky in "The Innocent," in which she will appear as a solo star when she returns from Hungary. "The Innocent" is Vilma's first picture without Ronald Colman and naturally everyone will be curious to see if this separation will hurt her standing or his popularity with the public. Samuel Goldwyn states that Miss Banky's fan mail has increased since her marriage.

Vilma and Rod are not the only ones to be enjoying a belated honeymoon. Sam and Frances Howard Goldwyn left last night for a trip to Europe. It will be Frances' first view of Paris and London. She was promised a trip abroad as a honeymoon tour and this is the very first chance Mr. Goldwyn has had to leave his picture-making enterprise since their marriage two years ago.

Corinne Griffith comes pretty near getting anything she wants at First National these days. They lost her one time and they are not taking any such chance again. All she has to do is to indicate a preference and everyone goes out to execute her desire. Just by way of example, she has set her heart on Agnes Christine Johnstone to write the scenario for "The Outcast," her next picture. Agnes is under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, but she is now writing Miss Griffith's next opera. "The Outcast," Elsie Ferguson's stage play, was purchased for Corinne by her husband, Walter Morosco, several months ago. The story is of a girl of the London streets and was really the play that made Elsie Ferguson famous.

There is to be a part for Matt Moore in Thomas Meighan's next picture. Lewis Milestone, who is co-author as well as director of Tommy's first for Caddo, has written in a part for Matt Moore. Two Irishmen in one picture! What chance have the English, French or Germans? None at all, at all. Mr. Milestone has gone to Palm Springs to commune with nature and write his script with the inspiration of the desert and the mountains.

Wally Beery's last comedy has been entrusted to the hands of an old-time comedy director. F. Richard Jones, who directed Mabel Normand in some of her successes when that young lady was throwing the most come-hither looks of any comedienne, will direct Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in "Ready, Aim, Fire." Wally is speaking of this picture in enthusiastic terms, for it means his freedom from the slapsticks that he loathes. He gets a little drama in this opera in spite of himself, for it deals with the underworld. This comedy marks the passing of the team of Beery and Hatton.

England would like to welcome Charlie Chaplin as its own motion picture star and France would be pleased to extend the same courtesy to Adolphe Menjou. Both of these players, however, have contractual obligations in Hollywood and I cannot see any immediate chance of either country realizing this ambition. Mr. Chaplin has an enormous following in his home country, England, and while Mr. Menjou is American born, his French name and French parentage have given him exceptional standing with the French people.

THEATER BILLS APPEAL

When the new Stanley Theater opens Monday night Pittsburgh theatergoers will be entertained by Anatole Friedland and his company of 20 artists in their Night Club Revue. The screen attraction will be "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," a picturization of Anita Loos' gold-digger story.

The cast of "Greenwich Village Follies," which will play in the Alvin next week, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday, includes Blossom Seeley, "Dr." Rockwell, Grace Brinkley, Benny Fields, Jack Sanborn, Jans and Whalen and others.

The second and last week of the engagement of Lenore Ulric in "Lulu Belle" begin in the Nixon Theater on Monday evening. As Lulu Belle Miss Ulric has a role that is radically different from her previous characterizations.

"Broadway," the night club melodrama, enters its second week in the Pitt Monday night. Thursday and Saturday are matinee days in the Pitt.

Marion Sunshine, headliner of the Keith-Albee vaudeville program in the Davis next week, is a song writer as well as an actress. One of her songs is "Baby Sister Blues," sung on the stage by the Duncan Sisters.

Marion Davies, in "Quality Street," with Conrad Nagel, is to be in the Aldine next week. The picture played the Embassy Theater, New York, for 10 weeks at advanced prices, with reserved seats, twice daily.

Although Greta Garbo is widely known she is being presented for the first time as a star in "The Divine Woman," in the Penn next week. Previously she has been co-starred with John Gilbert.

"East Side West Side" is to be next week's photoplay attraction in the Grand. George O'Brien and Virginia Valli have the two principal roles.

Little Bobbie Gordon, who acts the role of Al Jolson as a boy, in "The Jazz Singer," which enters its third week at the Olympic next Monday, was born in Pittsburgh.

Billy Nielan, singing miner from Harmarville, and Marianne Jacque and Albert Bonach, winners of Pittsburgh's dancing marathon, are to be extra added features in the Harris vaudeville bill next week.

Bee Cunningham and her eight dancing girls will be seen in stepping act in "Frivolities of 1928" in the Academy next week.

Girl From Broadway

ELEANOR Z. AUDLEY is the girl and "Broadway" is the play in the Pitt, where this melodrama of the cabarets got a running start Monday.

Contest

DICK LEIBERT
Mr. Leibert, who has been organist in the Penn Theater 21 weeks, is to engage in a musical contest with Don Albert, director, and the Penn orchestra next week, in an act entitled "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean," in which organ and orchestra will reply to each other. Mr. Albert has been in the Penn 24 weeks.

MUSIC

Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest
Carnegie Music Hall

The second annual Pennsylvania intercollegiate glee club contest was held last night in Carnegie Music Hall, five clubs participating—Allegheny College, Bucknell University, Carnegie Institute of Technology, Juniata College, and Pennsylvania State College. Honorable mention came to Carnegie Tech, but highest honors and the silver cup were awarded Pennsylvania State College.

To us who follow the waves of musical influence in the colleges since Harvard broke away from the earlier glee club bleatings, the singing last night came as a marvelous encouraging voice. That club which was least good displayed qualities of spirit and appreciation that former clubs never knew; the prize winners were really exceptional singers—their tone, the elegance of their diction, their feeling for the musical phrase was very pronounced. It is indeed praiseworthy that these fellows sing so well, it is far more glorious that they do sing at all.

Each college sang a song chosen by its leader, all sang the prize song, the Broken Melody of Jean Sibelius, then each gave its college song. There was a devotion when they sang their Alma Mater that was really touching. Miss Esther Edmundson sang three songs while the judges chose the winner in the contest, R. W. Grant, president of the Intercollegiate Musical Council, gave the history of the organization, and all the clubs joined in Kremser's Prayer of Thanksgiving at the end of the program. Harvey B. Gaul directed the combined clubs. Charles N. Boyd was master of ceremonies and the judges were Ernest Lunt, Will Earhart, and the undersigned.

LINDY TESTS MOTOR

Mitchell Field, where they will discuss the invention with representatives of the Guggenheim Foundation.

The motor invetnion has been carefully veiled. The report from Selfridge Field today was that it had been tested yesterday with Col. Lindbergh and Maj. Lanphier in attendance. Neither Lindbergh nor Lanphier confirmed the report.

Announcement such a motor had been actually tested was a complete surprise, although knowledge of the existence of a two-foot model of the motor has been current for some time.

Its inventor is Lester J. Hendershot, of Pittsburgh, a free-lance experimenter in motive power. His backer at Selfridge Field in conversations with Army engineers is D. Barr Peat, also of Pittsburgh, manager of the Bettis Field airport there.

Hendershot is credited with several successful electrical inventions, two of which he has sold to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. He exhibited his model several weeks ago to friends. A layman pronounced it:

"Something like an earth induction motor and the nearest thing to perpetual motion. It's a sort of a magnet arrangement which in a general way would pull on the rear of an airplane and make it fly. It is supposed to run on an electro-magnetic principle aplied to the rotation of the earth on it saxis."

At that time Hendershot obtained 1,806 revolutions a minute from the model. This was said to have been duplicaed at Selfridge Field yesterday, with Lindbergh and Lanphier watching the motor run.

Hendershot and Peat have been in the neghborhood of Detroit for about three weeks, making their headquarters at Selfridge Field, where they have been in conference with Army engineers.

Whether Lindbergh's visit at this time had been pre-arranged with the inventor has not been determined, but the "Lone Eagle" was said to be actively interested in the Hendershot invention.

His purpose in hopping off today for the New York airfield, it was said, was to discuss the invention with officials of the Guggenheim foundation.

No mention of capitalization of the Hendershot invention has appeared. It is considered likely that Ford engineers have been advised of Hendershot's progress, but whether Edsel Ford, who has conferred with Lindbergh in the last few days, has discussed the motor model with him was not announced.

Henry Ford's trip to Florida to visit Thomas Edison came in for speculation in connection with the reports on the invention.

The importance of a fuelless motor in all ramifications of the motor industry at once suggested itself to persons discussing the Hendershot model.

CHEAP DOPE GROWS

FILLS ADDICT WITH DESIRE TO KILL

that grows in Texas and in Arizona and in Southern California.

You can grow enough Marijuana in a window box to drive the whole population of the United States stark, staring, raving mad.

They make Marijuana cigarets now and smoke them at smart parties—just for the "kick."

They put it up like chewing tobacco and people chew it to get the effect.

They dry it and make a powder of it and they steep the dried leaves and make it into tea—you pay your money and you take your choice, but when you have once chosen Marijuana, you have selected murder and torture, and hideous cruelty to be your bosom friend.

Breeder of Crime

Most of the strange crimes of the southern Pacific coast come, so the police officials say out there, from marijuana.

Children use it and down in the Mexican quarter of Los Angeles it is not difficult to get as much of it as you want, for not very much money. That's where it differs from most of the narcotic drugs.

A confirmed adict will spend $10 or $20 a day for heroin, enough to keep from going crazy. Morphine costs money too. And so does cocaine. The peddlers make a hundred times as much on it as they pay for it. And at that, they mix it with powdered alum and only give the poor addict half of what he pays for.

It comes into the country, this "dope," in all sorts of curious ways. Not long ago, some Chinamen bringing ashore a consignment of furniture stumbled on the gangplank of a big ocean liner. One of the chairs they were carrying fell and the leg broke off—the secret was out. The legs were hollow and they were stuffed with morphine.

Hidden in Oranges

They grow rather nice oranges in Mexico, they say—some of them have a peculiar flavor. They are stuffed with cocaine.

Cocaine is made from the leaves of the cocoa plant which grows in South America.

It has been known there for generations. The runners who carry huge loads on their backs over the mountains chew cocoa leaves to give them strength to make the journeys.

It is only of late years that the cocoa leaf has been turned into a drug for general consumption. When we first learned about it, we thought it was a great boon to humanity—and it was when it was correctly used.

But now there is no real necessity for it at all. Drugs that are not habit-forming have taken its place, and there is no reason in the world in any civilization for the manufacture or the buying and selling of cocaine.

Most Dangerous Drug

The same thing is true of heroin.

When heroin was first discovered, some 15 years ago, it came into America like a blessing from the skies.

It had all the soothing properties of morphine, said the doctors who used it, and none of the bad effects at all.

It didn't take long to discover the mistake.

Heroin is three times as strong as morphine and six times as dangerous. A heroin addict is the worst addict of all. Harder to cure, and more sunk in hideous degradation than any other addict in the world.

Is there a cure for narcotic addiction?

No one has found one yet. Every once in a while some person of strong will and determined character makes a desperate effort and shakes off the slavery of narcotics.

One of the most brilliant and fascinating actresses on the English and American stage is an example of this sort of thing. She had the world at her feet—youth, beauty, genius, fame, money—all knocked at her door. And she laughed and bade them enter. She was the envy and the admiration of the whole profession and then all at once something went wrong. Her voice began to fail her, something seemed to be the matter with her dancing. The gay vitality that had enchanted crowds—began to fade. Nobody knew what had happened.

Was she ill? Was she heart-sick over some personal disappointment? Had it all turned to dust and ashes in her mouth the success and the fame and the adulation and the flattery?

Pinnacle to Depths

She lost her following—she lost her prestige.

She was out of work. She was looking for an engagement. She, who had laughed in the faces of the most powerful managers.

She was poor. She was destitute.

They picked her up on the streets of London, ragged and dirty and forlorn, and when she told them who she was, nobody would believe it.

They took her to a hospital, and finally someone who knew her when she was a great star, went to see her. And she cried and said she was sorry and she wanted to get well again and if someone would only give her a chance she would break the habit of narcotics which had broken her.

And someone did give her a chance, and she took it.

She fell and rose again. She went down and out three or four times, almost she gave up the fight. But something in her soul held her to the struggle—and finally she won.

She made a tour of this country not six months ago and was as beautiful and as successful as she ever was in all her life.

She was "cured" of drug addiction.

It is just as well to be honest and face the truth in this matter. This woman is about the only one known to the public who ever "came back."

And there are hundreds who have tried hard and who couldn't "make the grade."

A Jealous God

In the vaudeville theaters, in the moving picture companies, in the legitimate theater—you will find the pale victims of narcotic addition. They will not be there long—morphine is a jealous god and will permit no divided allegiance.

If you want the black candle to sputter in your brain you must put out all other lights.

There is a great lawyer in this country today—he was an addict for years, and he has broken himself of the habit.

Two well-known doctors, one in the East and one in the West, have both cured themselves of narcotic addiction.

Few Shake Shackles

But these are only shining examples—the rest of the poor victims, struggle as they may, are almost sure to sink back into the dismal swamp of narcotics, no matter how hard they struggle to get out. Every now and then somebody announces a new "cure." So far, none of these "cures" have proved really satisfactory. Some day, some one will find a "cure" for drug addictions, for after drug addiction has reached a certain stage it is not a habit, but a disease.

A wasting, loathsome, hideous, cruel disease.

And the sooner people learn to realize that fact and look it in the face and treat the narcotic addict as a sick man, the better for the addict and for everybody else concerned.

One thing is certain.—addicts should be isolated, for they are worse than lepers. One addict is good for six more—don't forget for one minute that that is the slogan of the drug ring.

What is the remedy for this terrible menace?

How shall we keep narcotic addiction out of the country?

They stamped out yellow fever in Cuba and in the Panama region. Smallpox is fast disappearing. They've learned how to control diphtheria, and in these later days they have even discovered a remedy for leprosy.

These things were not done by ignorance or by indifference.

They were done by concerted, intelligent, indefatigable, hard work.

Tuberculosis, cancer, diphtheria, yellow fever—they are all being conquered by science.

When are we going to set to work scientifically, patiently, honestly and in deadly earnest to find first a prevention for narcotic addiction, and second a cure?

John L. Paden, of 600 Arch street, said he was sorry he had ever married Mary C. Paden, of 1105 Sarah street, the wife testified yesterday in her suit for divorce. Her husband said he wished she had died before she got married and often invited her to leave, she said.

WOULDN'T LISTEN

Her husband "hung up" on her when she telephoned him and asked that he help support her and her baby, Mrs. Bertha B. Hammond, of 2513 Wedgemere street, Brookline, testified in her divorce action against Alfred Hammond. The husband was charged with desertion. Mrs. Hammond, represented by Attorney Maurice H. Goldstein, said that she was deserted in Meadville in 1925. The couple were married in 1921, and had lived in Apollo and Vandergrift before they moved to Meadville.

AMUSEMENTS.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Lighten Labors and Thus Improve Housewife's Health

THIS is a beautiful day. I am on a train between Pittsburgh and Washington. The sun shines brightly and I long to be out on the hills instead of in this car, comfortable as it is.

DR. COPELAND

I sometimes wonder if country people enjoy their privileges as they should. Born on a farm, I know disadvantages of farm life as well as its attractions. Its monotonies, its isolations, its hard, seasonal labor, its unfair economic conditions—all these I am familiar with, of course.

But modern invention has done much for the farmer and his family. The automobile, the telephone, the rural mail delivery, and, particularly, the radio—these have revolutionized farm life. The church, the movies, the shops, the relatives, are all within easy reach.

Cheap electricity and its transmission throughout the farm sections will be the next step to improve farm conditions. The electric dish-washer and ironer and churner and sewing machine will lighten the labor of the farm house.

The other day I had a visit with one of my cousins, the housewife in a real country home. She is a famous cook, the old-fashioned glorious kind.

To my amazement, my cousin was in rhapsodies of delight over an electric stove just installed. She had taken to it as a duck does to water.

No more wood to fetch, no more fires to build, no more smoky flues, no more uneven temperatures—here is a device that makes baking scientifically perfect. These, in effect, were the enthusiastic utterances of Cousin May.

I am in favor of each and every invention that will lighten the labor and add to the joys of the farm women. They have had the hardest of lives and because of sacrifices deserve all that science can do to help them.

Yet, do you know, you couldn't get one of them to admit that the farm life is anything but perfect? They glory in tribulation, and we love them for their spunk.

But whether they welcome my interference or not, I want to urge all farmers to turn aside from corn and turnips for the moment and take a look at the farm kitchens.

Wouldn't it make the room a lot pleasanter if it had another window? You and the boys could cut the space and fit the frame. The sash can be found at the lumber yard. Make it right, so there won't be a lot of cold air rushing in around it.

What about the well and the cistern? Are the pumps in the kitchen or on the kitchen porch? It doesn't cost much to connect up the water supply and to place the pump in a convenient spot. It will save "Ma" and the girls a lot of discomfort and hard colds to have the pump indoors.

Have you thought of damming up the stream or putting a reservoir at the spring, so water can be piped to the house? I did that and we have just as comfortable bathrooms at the farm as we do in town.

Perhaps the kitchen chimney needs to be cleaned or a new stove installed. You may be told, "it is good enough," but don't you believe it. You will get a lot of new dishes, pies and things if the stove works just right.

Help to lighten the labors and thus to improve the health of the good housewife. She will live years longer if you do this and will be happy to think you have her welfare at heart, as if course you have.

THE STAR-GAZER

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY

To Be a Little Star in a Big Place— or— a Big Star in a Little One!

WHILE the youngster who is taking the stars seriously is taking prizes from the hand of Garrett P. Serviss, who has never been known to write a dull article, whose articles should be called romances instead—for romances they are in the truest sense of the word—fascinating, adventurous truths that carry the mind to giddy, sparkling heights, another youngster is star-gazing with romantic thoughts of another color.

To lift our eyes to a star at all is to lift ourselves into a world of thoughts and dreams. To my little child it brings a flow of questions that it takes all the wisdom I have and more, too, to answer. To even his tiny heart, without book knowledge, the winking, diamond light of a planet strikes a thrill. To us older ones, with both some knowledge and much emotion, they bring awe and aspirations. To the young girl at the end of the first paragraph, in a turmoil of ambitions and feeling, they bring serious, puzzled questions and half-born wishes.

After the play, thrilled by the light and grace of color, ardent with applause and admiration for some bright star on the stage, she goes home and falls into a dream of flower-smothered fame. Gazing at a real star she dreams of being an earth-star. What would it be like? To have a theater packed with people, your own kind, not one night but many nights, beating their hands together with the sound of a storm, all because you were so wonderfully gifted, so wonderful to look at and listen to and to watch that they could not help it! Color, fame, money that you made yourself, a picture of glitter and light!

Or—to star in somebody's heart and home. To be the biggest, the most worshipped thing there, to be a goddess and the source of all light—a star, indeed—to little live things that belong to you and one other that you love! How about that?

The star does not answer, being only another world, and not a bright eye, when she asks which is the best, private or public applause?

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE DANGEROUS MOOD

MY SON, there is a time to marry—and a time to beware of marriage.

A time to love—and a time to watch thy STEP!

* * *

Verily, NO man need dwell in fear of women, when all his thoughts are upon his work, all his dreams of his ambitions, and all his heart wrapped up in BUSINESS. For a man that laboreth feverishly from dawn until night, hath not a thought nor an emotion left for any woman!

HELEN ROWLAND

But when the moment of idleness cometh; when he seeketh rest and diversion, when time hangeth heavily upon his hands and he is filled with ennui, then let him take heed. For his foot is upon the quicksands.

* * *

When he suffereth from disappointment and his heart is bruised; when he is lonely and filled with bitterness of spirit, let him close his eyes and pray for strength. For he shall NEED it!

When he hath quarreled with the woman of the moment; when his vanity hath received a blow; when he is filled with disillusion and sigheth to "forget it all," let him gird up his loins against temptation. For then is he as a taxicab that steereth straight for the telegraph pole—and no amount of shouting can stop him!

* * *

When he is ill and weak and without defense; when he yearneth for nursing and coddling; when he hath no fight left IN him, then let him beware. For his danger is mighty!

Yea, these are the Marrying Moods! And neither heaven nor philosophy can HELP him against any woman!

He is as a sheep prepared for the shearing, a lamb decked for the sacrifice, a jay walker that seeth not the traffic signals!

But when he is content and happy and full of well-being; when his digestion worketh gloriously; when his friends are plentiful, and his pockets are overflowing, then need no man fear that he is in danger of matrimony.

For he requireth nobody to help him pity himself!

* * *

When he dwelleth in comfort and luxury in a bachelor flat; when he hath a mother to coddle him, and sisters to adore him, and handmaidens to wait upon him, then is he immune.

* * *

When his heart is lighter than a sponge cake, and his affections divided among many women, as samples at a food show; then need he have no fear that he shall fall in love with only ONE woman!

* * *

For, verily, verily, he needeth nobody to help him LOVE himself!

Horoscopes

Sunday, February 26

The priesthood is a celestial honor, and an earthly but a heavenly procession.—Philo.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds tokens of a quiet and routine order of affairs, the serenity of which, however, may be disturbed by a tendency to strife, harshness and criticism. Safeguard the money and shun travel and change.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a rather commonplace state of affairs, which should not be stirred into strife and inharmony. Money should be conservatively handled and change postponed.

A child born on this day may have a disposition eternally in conflict unless given an equilibrating ideal in youth. Advanced philosophy should be instilled.

Notable Nativity: Henry W. Longfellow, poet.

Monday, February 27

Monday's astrological forecast shows many opportunities for growth and advancement, but also avenues for prodigious blunders. The latter may be avoided by signing papers of every kind with caution and looking for the snare in new undertakings. Otherwise bold ventures and initiative will win.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of splendid opportunity before them, with the energies and vision keyed to the winning point, but be careful in new undertakings and sign all writings cautiously. Subtlety is shown.

A child born on this day may be excellently endowed with talents and energies for success and fine position in life, but it should be taught the danger of exercising expediency and craft against principle and integrity.

Notable Nativity: Ellen Terry, English actress.

Don't Fuss With Mustard Plasters

Don't mix a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, and takes the place of mustard plasters.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia)

RAISING THE DAUGHTER OF JAIRUS

Sunday School Lesson
Mark 5:22-43

BY { Harlowe R. Hoyt
Walter Scott

Back on the western coast of Galilee, Christ preached to the multitude near Capernaum. Among his listeners was Jairus, a ruler of the synagogue, whose daughter lay near to death.
The father urged Christ to visit the child and heal her. Followed by the multitude, they started for the home of Jairus, when a woman, ill with hemorrhage, seized the hem of the Saviour's robe.
Trembling with anxiety, the woman stated her case. "Thy faith has made thee whole," Christ declared. "Go in peace." As the woman rose, a messenger from the sick room came to tell Jairus his daughter was dead. "Fear not," Jesus said, "Only believe."
Christ went to the room where the daughter of Jairus lay dead. He took her by the hand. "I say unto thee—arise!" commanded the Saviour. The child arose well and whole, and sat down to a meal with her family.

PRE-EASTER SUBJECTS SALVATION ARMY THEME

Subjects appropriate to the pre-Easter season will form the theme of the Sunday program at Salvation Army headquarters, 425 Second avenue. Adjt. and Mrs. Clifford Lockwood will be the chief speakers at the 11 a. m. service and at 3 p. m. Headquarters' staff officers will speak at the Sunday school at 2 p. m. and at the Young People's at 6.

THUGS BEAT UP, ROB MAN

Beaten on the head by one of three highwaymen who stopped him in Woodward avenue near his home early today, John Schmidt, of 112 Woodward avenue, was robbed of $37. He was knocked to the pavement and robbed while lying in a dazed condition. After reaching home a physician was called and three stitches were placed in a cut on his head.

BISHOP MANN TO BE GUEST

The Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, bishop of the Pittsburgh diocese of the Episcopal Church, will be the honored guest of the Church Club at a dinner Tuesday evening in the William Penn Hotel. Following Bishop Mann's address, a talk will be given by the Rev. W. W. Reid, on the "Contributions to Spiritual Life by Stephen G. Foster," with illustrations by the organist and choir members of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Sewickley.

ZION LUTHERAN CHURCH TO HOLD SERVICE SERIES

A series of Community services will be conducted in the Mount Zion Lutheran Church, Evaline street, near Liberty avenue, Bloomfield, starting Sunday morning, when the Rev. Dr. J. Aspinwall McCuaig, lecturer, of Toronto, Can., will conduct a four-day institute on "Marriage Problems and Living Standards." Sunday afternoon, Dr. McCuaig will speak to the men only on "Why Women Fail," and later to women only on "The Power of Sex." After the regular vesper service, he will speak to a second congregation on "Marriage Standards." Each afternoon at 3 o'clock, Dr. McCuaig will speak on "Home Problems."

CHURCHES HAVE SPECIAL LENT SERVICES

The first Sunday in Lent will be observed in the churches here tomorrow, with special sermons and music. In several of the churches, the pastors will begin a series of special pre-Easter sermons.

A series of special Lenten sermons will be given by the Rev. Dr. Percival H. Barker, pastor of the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church, Fifth and Penn avenues, beginning Sunday morning, when he will speak on "The Seven Words from the Cross." Dr. Barker will speak at the evening service on "The Man Who Stopped Too Soon."

The first Sunday in Lent will be recognized in Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, North Highland avenue and Rippey street, when the Rev. Dr. W. Wofford Duncan, pastor, will speak in the morning on the topic, "Is Lent Worth While?" Dr. Duncan will preach in the evening on "Is The Big Bible Class a Help to the Church?" Bible Class No 34, one of the large classes for men and women in Emory church, will attend this service in a body.

The Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, will begin a series of Lenten sermons on the general theme "Honest Questions About Jesus," Sunday at 11 a. m. His subject will be "Jesus and Martha, Did He Undervalue Homely Service?" At 8 p. m. Dr. Day will continue the discussion of "Religious Humbugs," the theme being "Keeping Faith With Life."

TO PRESENT PAGEANT

A pageant, "America's Call to Service," will be given by a cast of 28, Sunday at 7:45 p. m. in the Homewood Presbyterian Church, Bennett street. The Rev. C. Carson Bransby, pastor, will speak at the morning service on "Paying the Price of Life."

"Only a Few Hours to Live," will be the subject of the Rev. Dr. Henry P. Eckhardt, pastor of St. Andrew's Lutheran Church, Center and Morewood avenues, Sunday evening. This sermon will be the first of a series of Lenten addresses. A Lenten cantata, "Penitence and Pardon," by Maunder, will be given. In the morning Dr. Eckhardt will preach on "Preparing the Last Passover."

The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street, will preach Sunday morning on "Should Presbyterians Observe Lent?" Dr. Shelton will speak in the evening on "Spiritual Aviation." Special music will be given at this service.

After an absence of two weeks, the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr will again occupy the pulpit of Shadyside Presbyterian Church, speaking in the morning on "The Gospel for Every Day," and at the Vesper Service on "The World's Greatest Sermon." The Vesper Chorus of 16 voices, directed by Earl Mitchell, will sing part one of the cantata "The Holy City," by Gaul. An organ recital will precede each service.

B. Benedict Glazer, assistant rabbi of Rodef Shalom Temple, Fifth and Morewood avenues, will speak on "The Modern Cult of the Seamy Side," at 10:45 a. m.

OPEN FORUM

The Open Forum at the East End Christian Church, South Highland avenue and Alder street, will consider Sunday night, the theme, "Is Life Worth Living?" the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers will speak. Questions from the floor will be answered for one-half hour. Dr. Ewers' will speak at the morning service on "The Man Who Stopped Growing." The chorus choir and Carolyn Hunt Mahaffey, contralto soloist, will sing at both services.

A series of lectures on "What Is Essential in the Various Faiths," will begin in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Forbes street and Craft avenues, Tuesday evening, when the Rev. Dr. I. Walter Mason, pastor of the First Unitarian Church, will speak on "What Is Essential in the Unitarian Faith." The sermons will be conducted every Tuesday evening throughout Lent.

The Rev. Dr. John A. McCamey, Knoxville Methodist Episcopal Church, will preach the first of a series of sermons on "God's Great Challenge," at 11 a. m. In the evening, stereopticon views will be given of the life of Joseph and Esther.

A Lenten Bible Class will be conducted by Bishop Alexander Mann, of the Episcopal diocese, at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Forbes street and Craft avenue, beginning Monday at 2 p. m. and continuing every Monday until March 26. Bishop Mann will speak on the general theme "The Earliest Gospel." His subject Monday will be "The Gospel in the Apostolic Age."

Chaplain

FATHER PATRICK

The Rev. Father Patrick, chaplain of the De Paul Institute, an oral school for the deaf, Castlegate avenue, Brookline, who will give a course of Lenten sermons to the children of the Institute every Friday evening during Lent. The subjects of the sermons will be the characters of the Passion, treated in the form of a story. No signs will be used as the children at the institute are taught to read the lips.

CLARK WARS ON FIRE-TRAP THEATERS

Theaters and motion picture houses that do not fully comply with fire regulations will be closed and kept closed until they are made entirely safe, Director James M. Clark, of the Public Safety Department, said yesterday in ordering an investigation of every theater and movie house in the city. One-third of the theaters here are fire traps, the director said. One theater already has been ordered closed.

The Victoria Theater at 1824 Center avenue was closed and its owner was refused a license to operate by the safety department yesterday. The closing followed a report of H. L. Ley, superintendent of building inspection, in which it is said the theater has been operating contrary to law; that films were not stored in metal containers and that debris accumulated in dressing rooms and in the rear of the stage.

DRY AGENT OUT OF TROUBLE

Prohibition Agent Edward J. Lawler, who, a few days ago was experiencing more trouble than a person usually has in the same short space of time, is clear of difficulties again and is carrying on his work in the prohibition department. Yesterday Coroner W. J. McGregor exonerated him from all blame for the death of John Bockman, 24, killed February 12 in Anderson street when he ran into Lawler's automobile.

Two days before, Lawler had been arrested on a charge of shirking drills as a member of the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery and that charge terminated upon his payment of $11, one for each drill missed.

EMORY CLASS ORCHESTRA TO GIVE CONCERT FEB. 28

The class orchestra of the Emory Brotherhood Bible Class of the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, North Highland avenue and Rippey street, will present a musical Tuesday evening in the class rooms, assisted by the Greater Pittsburgh Male Chorus.

This class, with its enrollment of more than 750, has been greatly helped in its average Sunday morning attendance of 350, by the work of the orchestra.

The class is contemplating putting up a permanent memorial tablet to Harry W. Dunlap, teacher of the class for many years and instrumental in starting the orchestra.

PENN STATE GLEE CLUB WINS SINGING CONTEST

For the second consecutive year the Glee Club of Pennsylvania State College won the Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Glee Club contest, staged last night in the Carnegie Music Hall. Singers from Carnegie Institute of Technology were given honorable mention. Allegheny and Juniata College and Bucknell University also participated in the contest. The Penn State club will represent the state at the national competition of glee clubs to be held March 10, in New York. Last night's program also included several solos by Miss Esther Edmundson, soprano.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENTS ON SOCIAL EVENTS

Pittsburghers in South Aid Philanthropies

EVEN with all the attractions Palm Beach has to offer at this time of year, the society folks who have gone there to escape the wintry blasts of the North are not forgetting their philanthropic duties. They have found time, in their full days, to arrange a Girl Scout benefit, which was held yesterday. The scouts, it seems, received 10 per cent of all the sales at one of West Palm Beach's larger department stores, and one of those who sponsored the affair was Mrs. Alfred Goddard Kay.

It must have been an entertaining as well as profitable enterprise, since the members of the Scout Council and the troop captains were assisted in selling by quite a group of notables, among them being Billie Burke, Mrs. Joseph Urban, Mrs. Bula Croker and others.

Elizabeth Rhodes was married today at noon in New York to George A. Harder, in the apartment which she and her mother, Mrs. James Dickson Rhodes, of Sewickley, have been occupying during the winter. As you remember, Elizabeth's father and her brother and sister are abroad, so the wedding was a very quiet one. Her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Pearson Rhodes, of Wilkins avenue, went on to see Elizabeth married, and her sister, Melus, came from the Greenwood School at Huxton, Md. Mr. Harder's two daughters, Dorothy and Jean, were also present at the wedding, as well as his brother-in-law and sister, the Sidney S. Whelans. Mr. Harder, you know, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Harder, of Park avenue, New York.

After the ceremony there was a small reception, and at 3 o'clock the Harders sailed on the Saturnia for Naples where they will meet Elizabeth's family. They are planning quite an extensive trip, I understand, and when they get back they will live in Park avenue, New York.

Bermuda has been the Mecca of many Pittsburghers this winter and there is quite a colony of local people there. The next ones to join it, it appears, will be Mrs. G. Webber Barnes and her daughter, Priscilla, of Howe street. They are going to leave on Monday for the South.

That amusing sort of party, a progressive dinner, is going to be held tonight by a group of Sewickley married people in honor of the T. Franklin Websters, of Cliveden, Germantown, formerly of Sewickley, who are visiting the Harry McMahons, of "Lombarty," Sewickley Heights. The dinner will start, I hear, at the home of the Herbert L. Weirs, in Meiville lane, and will end at the McMahons with a dance.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Mildred June Hassett, of Pittsburgh, and James Kenneth Rawsthorne, of Philadelphia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Rawsthorne, of Grandview avenue, Mt. Washington, which was solemnized Tuesday night in the Media Baptist Church, Philadelphia, by the Rev. B. P. Hope. After a short trip, Mr and Mrs. Rawsthorne will be at home in Emerson Hall, Chester avenue, West Philadelphia.

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Henry P. Eckhardt, of Morewood avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Louise Eckhardt, to Carl H. Baker, of Cleveland. Miss Eckhardt is a graduate of the Carnegie Institute of Technology Fine Arts School and Mr. Baker is a Yale man.

* * *

Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Roll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winnield Roll, of Ridge avenue, Cornopolis, has chosen Saturday, March 10, as the date for her marriage to H. Russell Wellet, of Buffalo, formerly of Mercer, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Weller, of Mercer. The ceremony will be performed at 6:30 o'clock in the Roll home by the Rev. A. J. R. Schumaker.

A supper and card party will be held Monday night by Schenley Court No. 43, Order of the Amaranth, in its hall in Fifth avenue. Mrs. Sophia Hirschman is royal matron of the court.

* * *

For the benefit of the Pennsylvania Memorial Home at Brookville, a card party will be held tonight in the home of Mrs. Cora Lee Peterson in Hybla street, North Side.

A bridge party for the benefit of the Curtis Home for Girls will be held by the Woman's Auxiliary on March 7 in Oppenheim-Collins' auditorium. Mrs. Rollins A. Haddock, Jr., is president of the auxiliary.

* * *

The Purim costume ball will be held March 7 in the Morris Kaufmann Memorial Auditorium by the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association. Prizes will be given for the costumes, and there will be a program of entertainment.

SQUIRREL HILL CLUB CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

The pretty ceremony of the candle-lighting was the high spot in the Squirrel Hill Community Club's birthday celebration yesterday. The affair was held in the Roosevelt school, where the members gather for their regular semi-monthly meetings. It was the ninth anniversary and each of the nine presidents or a representative was there to light her tall gold taper around the two-tiered birthday cake and to voice an appropriate sentiment. Of the nine executives, Mrs. John R. Speer, Mrs. J. R. Mason, Mrs. J. C. Aufhammer, Mrs. C. E. Wade, Mrs. W. G. Eyman, Mrs. J. B. Cooke, Mrs. C. L. Curll, Mrs. H. R. Morgan and the present incumbent, Mrs. O. C. Colwes, only two were absent and these, Mrs. Aufhammer and Mrs. Eyman, were represented by their secretaries, Mrs. T. C. Kraus and Mrs. Homer Layman.

The program, in addition to the lighting of the candles, included assembly singing of the club song, the words of which were written by Mrs. J. C. Clippinger, music chairman; vocal solos by Mrs. Hazel Baines Kapphan, accompanied by Mrs. Rose M. Hill and readings by Mrs. Norval R. Daugherty. Mrs. W. H. Collins led the club singing. The tea appointments were in gold and gray, the club colors, marigolds in gray wicker baskets, the gold and white cake and the silver gray knife tied with the colors, all helping to carry out the color scheme.

The College Club benefit bridge party will be held next Wednesday afternoon and evening at the Morrowfield Hotel. Heading the committee in charge of the affair is Mrs. Stephen L. Goodale, who will be assisted by Mrs. Herbert L. Stitt and Mrs. John D. Duff, in charge of tickets; Mrs. J. P. Cameron, Jr., Mrs. Thomas P. Trimble and Mrs. Wesley Holmes, of cake and and candy; Mrs. William R. Work and Mrs. Carl E. Glock, of tables; Mrs. Walter S. Church, tallies and prizes; Mrs. John M. Irwin and Mrs. John V. Breisky, publicity, and Mrs. Henry McL. Hallett, Mrs. Thomas U. Chesebrough and Mrs. A. W. McEldowney, who will act as hostesses.

Invitations to a benefit bridge in the interest of the Curtis Home for Girls are being issued by the Woman's Auxiliary, of which Mrs. Rollins A. Haddock, Jr., is the head. The affair is to be held in the Oppenheim Collins auditorium on the afternoon of Wednesday, March 7, and is limited to 50 tables.

Flat silver, woolen blankets, the redecoration and furnishing of the isolation room, with equipment in accordance with state requirements and the complete upkeep of dormitory beds are included as part of the auxiliary work for the current year.

Norman L. Glasser, superintendent of the Carnegie public schools, addressed the Carnegie Woman's Club yesterday, telling members of local school conditions. Mrs. Joseph Schutzman, of the Women's International League for Peace, also spoke and there was music by Miss Katherine MacLean, accompanied by Miss Vivian Burnham, and Philip and John Conley, who gave violin and saxophone duets, to the accompaniments of Miss Anne Louise Schreiber. Mrs. Charles Herrmann was hostess in the Y. W. C. A. and Mrs. Clara B. Fisher was leader.

A meeting of the Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Juniors, will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association. Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer, assistant at the Rodef Shalom Temple, will address the group on "Judaism's Appeal to Youth."

* * *

The women of the Pittsburgh Alumni Club of Allegheny College gathered for luncheon and bridge today in the Congress of Clubs. The affair was in charge of the district captains with Miss Lottie Hammet as chairman.

* * *

Mrs. William Dosey, of Idlewild street, will be hostess at a benefit bridge in her home tonight for the Thirteenth Ward League of Women Voters. For the same purpose Mrs. V. J. Yorty will entertain at bridge Saturday night, March 10.

In Selecting Silverware for the Home

A Good design Is the First Essential

Style, in the silver sense, seldom has to do with fashion. Silver is permanent—fashion, passing. If silver is to be a constant source of pleasure, its style must be correct. All the great style-periods in art are presented in our collection of silver.

Why We Behave Like Human Boings

by George A. Dorsey, Ph.D., LL.D.

Deadly Part of Parasites Living On and Off Humans

A Pin Scratch May Be and Often Is as Fatal as a Rifle Ball

Curiously, as was told in yesterday's chapter of "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," in The Sun-Telegraph, although vitamins are indispensable to our existence no one ever saw one until a few years ago. Refinement of foods due to man's altered manner of living has been costly, but this is being overcome with result that a cook must be a chemist as well.

Germ Carriers That Are Dangerous

CHAPTER XIV.

The little fleas which us do tease
Have other fleas to bite 'em,
And these in turn have other fleas,
And so . . . ad infinitem.

"FLEA" is any animal that lives on or within the body of a host and depends on that host for its food. All such are parasites. Eccles claims that half of all the animals in the world are parasites.

GEORGE A. DORSEY

The most numerous and deadly parasites come from that great half-animal, half-plant underworld known as bacteria. Second only in deadliness are some of the unicellular organisms of the animal world, the Protozoa. More annoying, but of quite a different order in their powers of destruction, are some of the lower members of the Metazoa subkingdom.

To the extent that parasites live on or within us or find a temporary home with us, and to the extent that they are causes of disease and death, they are proper objects of our interest and fit subjects for our attention. Indeed, the claim had been made that natural death in men and higher animals is due to parasitic organisms. This probably overstates the case, but it is a fact that micro-organisms enormously influenced organic evolution, that certain forms are constant menaces, and that no part, tissue, or function of our body is germ-proof. The menace is great because of their astounding capacity to multiply, constant because, like the poor, they are always with us. A pin-scratch may be as fatal as a rifle ball; careless handling of milk may plague a city.

Germs and Carriers

The general problem of parasitism is complicated. We shall look only at those parasites which are prone to infest the human body and are likely to cause disease. What are they, how are they married, how do they enter our body, what damage or disease do they cause, and how may we be rid of them or acquire immunity? The answers to even these questions are often interrelated.

Malaria, for example, is not a bacterial disease, nor do we "catch" it—it is brought to us by a mosquito. Malaria, as a disease, is not understood without reference to its carrier and without a knowledge of the life cycle of the germ which causes malaria. Again, rats are not parasites, yet some of the deadliest scourges of the human race are rat-flea-borne diseases. Why are the rats and fleas immune to plague? And how do they carry germs? The venom of a cobra, the ricin of the castor bean, the toxin of diphtheria germs, are deadly. Are they related substances? Only in their disruption of normal human processes of living and in the similarity of the response our bodies make to such substances.

It is true that no question can be raised regarding any one phase of any human process of living without removing the lid of all of life. The intricacy of life in its simplest forms is profound enough; it is not simplified by the addition of parasites. And yet possibly all living processes in higher organisms are brought about by aggregates of protein molecules which function as micro-organisms. If we only knew more about the protein molecule!

We shall, for keen minds are on its trail, and sooner or later it will yield its secret and life will be new again.

Parasitic Enemies

Meanwhile, there are mosquitoes to swat. And with them we may begin to call the roll of our parasitic enemies. Mosquitoes belong to Hexapoda (six-footed) insects, the most diversified, the most numerous, and for their size the smartest of all animals. Lice, fleas, ticks, bedbugs, jiggers, mosquitoes, flies—dozens of kinds, millions of each. And a variety for every plant and animal on earth big enough to carry one. They live on us, they live off us. They give us nothing useful. They irritate us. But they do not kill us. We are accustomed to them, "adapted," immune.

That is what immunity means. We are not exempt from fleas or dozens of other parasites. Only immune. We can stand them. The germ of death or disease carried by a parasite is another matter. Immunity may come in many forms.

Insects are the highest animals which infest or bedevil the human body. Lower in the scale is a flat-worm, the long, flat Taenia, or tape-worm. Its life history is longer and not at all flat. Man gets it from unsalted, uncooked pork. In his alimentary canal it loses most of its anatomy and becomes head and long body of dozens of segments, each for breeding purposes a complete male and female. That is what it is, a series of reproductive units. It needs no sense organs, has none; as it feeds on predigested food it needs no digestive apparatus, has none. Its head is a hook to hang on by and a siphon to suck up food.

Barefoot Peril

Our next lower animal parasitic enemies are the two threadworms—hookworm, trichina. The trichina is well understood and now under control; we hear little of it. The hookworm is well understood; but people will go barefooted.

The trichina lives coiled up in its cyst within a muscle cell—rat, cat, dog, pig, man. There may be 80,000 cysts in one ounce of him: half males, half females. Eaten by man, the cysts dissolve in the gastric juice, the worms are free. They mate. One female produces 1,000 young. The young break through and settle down in muscle cells—100,000,000 of them in one dead man.

Hookworm continues to claim its millions of victims each year simply because proper precautions are not taken to break the vicious circle of its life cycle. It is another case of Parasites Lost and Parasites Regained, in the words of a Fijian schoolboy, who, according to Dr. Vincent, had heard about hookworms and Milton the same day.

Hookworm eggs hatch in warm, moist soil. The tiny worms enter the skin of the bare feet, are carried by the blood to the lungs, where they bore through into the throat, and thence are borne to the alimentary canal, where 500 or more live parasitic lives attached to the wall of the small intestine. Their millions of eggs are returned to the soil to begin other cycles.

BURY FATHER, 4 CHILDREN WHO DIED IN FIRE

WIDOW AT FUNERAL FAINTS

Konstance Kozliewicz and four of his children, who were burned to death as they slept when fire destroyed their home, 31 Greenleaf street, West End, Wednesday morning, were buried today.

Four hearses, followed by nine machines bearing the mourners, conveyed the dead, Kozliewicz, 50; Steve, 18; Helen, 15; Mildred, 11, and Louis Kozliewicz, 7, to the Guardian Angel Roman Catholic Church, Steuben street, where Father S. Zmijewski said high requiem mass.

Only two of the family, Mrs. Anna Kozliewicz and her son, Louis, who was seriously burned while saving his mother, survived the flames. Louis, who is in a serious condition in the South Side Hospital, was unable to attend the funeral.

The little church was crowded to the doors, and hundreds, unable to gain admittance, thronged the entrance. Mrs. Kozliewicz fainted as she came out of the church, and had to be carried to an automobile.

Interment was made in St. Albert's Cemetery.

ASKS $40,000 FOR INJURIES

James Comorada, 2136 Wightman street, singer and former prize fight manager, and Anna Comorada have entered suit in Common Pleas Court against the Schenley Fuel and Supply Company, asking $40,000 joint damages for personal injuries received January 19, 1927, when their automobile was struck by a truck in Forbes street near Beeler street.

For personal injuries received January 13, when he fell through a pair of steps on Jones avenue, maintained by the city of Pittsburgh, Harry Stevens has sued the city for $15,000 damages.

DEATH BARES HERO

GLADYS HART COLEMAN

With the recent death of Harry Coleman, there came to light a story of heroism by a soldier. Coleman, a lieutenant in the World War, had been wounded and a private had volunteered to carry him to a first aid station. En route, the private was shot and killed. Since finding his identity, Coleman had been contributing $10 a week towards the support of the private's mother in Columbus, O. Coleman's widow, known as Gladys Hart, vaudeville entertainer, intends continuing her husband's charitable work as soon as his $160,000 estate is untangled.

THAW IS SUED IN SPIRIT FILM CONTRACT

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A newspaper report todays says suit for breach of contract has been started against Harry K. Thaw by Arthur B. Reeve, novelist, and John S. Lopez, scenario writer, as a result of Thaw's ventures as a motion picture producer.

Reeve and Lopez said they had been engaged by Thaw's manager to write 12 two-reel film stories at $500 each dealing with an exposure of spiritualism. Later Thaw was induced to abandon this undertaking, they said, and launched on a plan to film the story of his own life.

Two of the spiritualism films were made at a cost of $150,000, the paper says, but these never were sold. Casts were engaged and a technical staff signed for both film ventures, but Reeve and Lopez say they were paid for only the first of the series of 12 stories they wrote.

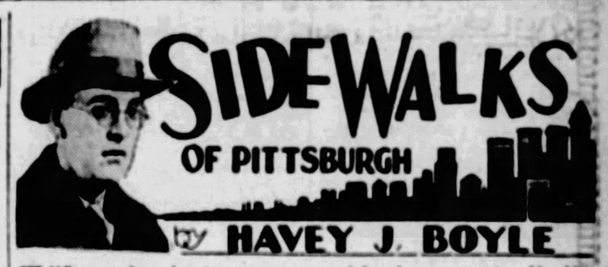
It was not expected that their suit would be reached on the court calendar for at least a year.

DR. HEINROTH TO TALK ON SCHUBERT TONIGHT

"Schubert, a Young Centenarian," is the subject of the talk to be given by Dr. Charles Heinroth tonight at 8:15 o'clock in Carnegie Music Hall. This is the first of the series of six lectures on musical subjects to be given by Dr. Heinroth on Saturday nights during Lent in place of the usual free organ recitals. In commemoration of the centenary of Schubert's death the first two talks will be devoted to a discussion of the music of that composer.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE



THE marathon dancing contest staged by the enterprising Mr. Milt Crandall is over. Mr. ——— and Miss ——— were the final victors in the long grind, to coin an expression. We purposely leave out the names because in a week or so they will be forgotten, anyway. We speak by the card in this because for the life of us we can't remember the name of the fellow who won the sitting on top of the flag pole championship and that other intrepid fellow who set the world afire—and his wife adrift—by drinking more cups of coffee than anyone else in the world. These things are important, but the names do not stick for some reason or other. For instance, who remembers who was crowned Miss America in 1922 or 1927 for that matter and what was the name of the girl who won the glittering title of Miss Kennywood at the bathing beauty show at that park last season—or was it season before last?

* * *

MR. CRANDALL will excuse us if we are just a little skeptical about certain affairs in connection with his marathon dancing contest. For instance, one of the insiders tells us that one of the competing couples stopped, contrary to the rules, long enough to take a drink of water to avoid fainting. Is this sportsmanship? Still, maybe our information was not direct from the feed box. But in being skeptical about such events we are no worse than Mr. Crandall himself, who long ago uttered his conviction that all sporting events were in the well-known bag, which is to say they are fixed. All except one. Mr. Crandall would except only wrestling from his forbidding indictment of the American fetish—professional and amateur sports.

SOME may scoff at the hardy souls—and heels—who entered the marathon dancing contest, and with superior disdain, wonder where the glory and honor came in for such a performance. Yet in a measure entering such a contest is the essence of art for art's sake. The fact that no one cares much who won or lost indicates that the dancers themselves, with a fine scorn for worldly acclaim, entered the contest to win just for the sake of achieving victory. There might have been a prize or so, but compared to the ordeal they went through no material prize could equal the thrill coming from victory.

IN HIS two volumes of "Our Times," Mr. Mark Sullivan goes back into the naughty nineties and tells entertainingly of the foibles of that day. When Mr. Sullivan comes to write of the present period he will take in such affairs as marathon dancing, hard derbies, raccoon coats, the freedom of the younger generation, and the realism of the American stage and American literature. Perhaps, by the time that next book is written what we now view with some horror will be considered quite quaint, if not entirely Victorian.

AS A missionary for the common weal our efforts always are not what they should be. In fact, after we grow sufficiently stout to afford them a good meal we may move to take up work among the cannibals.

(There has been a falling off of fat missionaries among the cannibals for obvious reasons.)

WHAT leads to such melancholy is a letter received from a young lady, who after noting here that children under 30 shouldn't attend Lulu Belle, writes in glee that she has seen the play not once—as the vaudeville acrobats say in telling of how many times they will turn on the trapeze—but two times.

* * *

One of the best ways to spend five hours on a train is to meet Mr. Ben Harris, of Pittsburgh and Braddock, who was associated with us a long time ago when we expected to flood the world with pumps and turbines. That is to say, Mr. Harris was secretary of the company and we were an office boy.

Pat Is Terribly Sick; Will Lily Go To Him?

"NEAT and natty costume for marketing, yachting or ballroom dancing," she heard Sue whisper, wickedly in her ear, as she turned.

For an instant she thought she was going to laugh in Sadye's face. Then, like a flash, all the laughter that was in her went out of her as Sadye spoke again:

"You've heard about Pat, haven't you?"

"Heard about Pat—" The walls of the market, the lights, the glass counters and all the many-colored foods upon them, seemed to whirl into a gigantic wheel for a second, and Lily caught hold of Sadye to steady herself.

"Why, what's happened?" she gasped. Surely nothing so very dreadful could have happened to him if Sadye were here, clad in her gayest clothes and bravely rouged!

"He's very sick," said Sadye. "They don't know what's the matter with him yet, but they've had two doctors so far this morning, so they ought to get at the truth pretty soon."

Lily put up a hand to her face and rubbed it across her eyes. Her brain seemed to have stopped working. She couldn't think clearly or see clearly. . . . Pat sick. . . . Two doctors. . . . Pat sick. . . . Very sick.

"Where is he? At his mother's house?" she asked, and Sadye nodded. Every time she nodded her head or moved, a wave of strong narcissus perfume came from her clothes.

"Yes—and they've forgotten to get any fresh vegetables in their store this morning," she said disgustedly. "Pat's mother is beside herself, and so is his father. The store is just running itself I guess. . . . You going down there?"

Lily just stared at her. She had no plans. No thoughts. Her whole mind was taken up with the one thought that Pat was so sick that he had to have two doctors that morning. . . . Why, Pat couldn't die, could he? He was so strong, so hard, so young. People like that didn't die, did they?

"No, I'm not going down," she heard herself saying to Sadye, after what seemed like a long time. "Why should I go down? He's nothing to me any more. . . . Let them get Elizabeth Ertz. She's a nurse. Let them get her!" Her voice was bitter.

She watched Sadye go down the market, and wondered why she had spoken to her about Pat when she had been so angry the last time she had seen her.

"Pat must be terribly sick. She must think he's going to die and that I ought to be there, or she never would have spoken to me at all," she decided. For Sadye was not the weak, forgiving type of person who tries to make up a quarrel. Sadye was like granite or concrete when it came to softness.

"Sue—did you hear what she said?" she wailed softly, when Sue came back with a paper pail of cottage cheese in her hands. "She said that Pat's desperately sick down at his mother's house! Pat—"

Sue gave her a long, straight look.

Then she took her by the arm.

"Come along over here and sit down," she said. "There's a place where they serve coffee. What's the matter with you, Lily? Suppose he is sick. Lots of people are sick."

Lily nodded, sitting down on the high, white stool beside the lunch counter. "Yes, but he's awfully sick," she said, and put her face down into her hands.

"Well, if I felt like that about him, I'd go down and see what I could do, divorce or no divorce," Sue remarked, in her sensible, quick way.

But Lily shook her head. "Not me," she answered. "No matter what happens to him, it's not any of my business any more."

And she went home. She stayed there all day, and went to bed that night without even telephoning to ask how he was.

CHAPTER LXII.

DOCTORS will tell you, if you ask them, that the time of day when people's vitality is at its lowest point is 3 o'clock in the morning.

And almost anyone will tell you that the most weird hour of the 24 is that same time—3 o'clock in the morning. An uncanny fearsome hour for people who lie awake, haunted by any kind of thought that will not let them sleep.

At 3 o'clock on that chilly spring morning, after she had heard about Pat's illness, Lily was wide awake in her warm lavender-scented bed in the house on Montpelier road.

It was as comfortable a bed as ever was, and its pillows were soft and deep. But there had been no rest in it for her that night. . . . Ever since 11 o'clock she had been twisting and turning restlessly in it, getting up on one elbow to stare into the darkness, lying down again and shutting her eyes as she tried to sleep.

But there was no sleep for her. No rest. Her mind kept going back to the small, brown-shuttered house next door to the France family's grocery store—back to the little room under the eaves that had been Pat's room and hers for the first few weeks of their married life.

She could imagine him lying there on the white bed, with his eyes closed and his breath coming, quick and shallow, and a flush on his face under the cheek bones.

"And I don't even know what's the matter with him," she thought. "Or who's with him—or if he's going to live or if he's going to die."

She could not bear to lie there, she told herself, not knowing the answers to all these questions that tortured her.

"I'll telephone," she decided at last. "If he's as sick as Sadye said he was there is sure to be a nurse on the job, and she'll answer the phone."

Then, as she sat up and swung her slender feet over the side of the bed, another thought stopped her. Suppose The Ertz were the nurse they had called in! She did not want to talk to The Ertz—the woman who was in love with Pat—the woman who probably would marry Pat as soon as he was free to marry. That is, if he didn't die. If he didn't die—

She stretched out her hand and switched on the lamp by the bed and in its sudden radiance the sapphire-and-diamond bracelet that Staley had given her seemed to catch fire.

On the bedside table was a bowl of yellow roses that he had sent to the house that morning. Magazines that he had given her were piled beside them, and in the little glass cigaret box were a dozen or so of the cigarets that he always kept her supplied with.

Staley. . . . She owed him something, certainly. He had proved himself loyal and generous to her, and he had been good to her people. He was going to marry her, too. He was going to be her husband in a few months. She was bound to him—although she still was legally bound to Pat France.

"I ought not to go down to Pat without asking him—or at least without telling him that I'm going," she said to herself. "I ought to be honest with him—I ought to be honest."

For a second a picture flashed out of her memory. A picture of Pat as he had looked that night in the drug store while she waited for Staley. . . . And she could hear his voice still, telling her that she never would be honest with anyone. "You just don't know how to be honest, do you?" he had asked her. "I wonder if you ever will."

It came to her that those were the last words he had ever said to her. She hadn't seen him since then. . . . If he—if anything happened to him, that was the way she would always remember him. Standing there in the drug store, with the electric light shining in his blue eyes and telling her that she never would be honest or straight or decent in all probability.

Well, she would be honest and decent and straight! At least, she would try to be. But it was going to be hard, for she never had thought of herself as being anything else until Pat, with his straight-laced ideas about such things, came along.

Forgetting to slip her feet into the fur-lined slippers beside the bed, or even to put on the negligee that hung over the foot-rail in readiness for her, she went cross the room to her writing desk and pulled out pen and paper from the drawer.

"Staley, dear," she wrote, "It's three in the morning, and so I am going to write this and mail it to your office instead of telephoning you, as I would at any other time.

I want to tell you that Pat is sick and so I am going to him. It does not mean a thing—my going down there where he is—except that after all, I am still married to him, and a man's wife ought to be with him when he is very sick. As soon as I know that he is well cared for, I will come home. So perhaps I'll be back at home before you get this. But I want to write it to you anyway, just to be honest with you. LILY."

She did not realize how much she had written between the lines of that half-hysterical little note that she thought was so calm and sensible. Without another thought, she folded it, put it into an envelope, addressed it, and stamped it. Then she began to dress.

She dressed as she never had dressed before in her life. Forgetting to comb her hair or brush her teeth, forgetting to bathe or even to wash, she began to hurry into her clothes.

Probably for the first time in 29 years, she dressed without so much as a single glance at herself in a looking glass. She did not care how she looked. She did not even think of her appearance. . . . Every thought in her mind was for Pat, every nerve in her body straining to reach him.

Jamming her hat down over her ears, and slipping into her coat, she opened the door of her room. As she stepped out into the hall a line of light suddenly appeared under the door of her mother's room on the other side of it.

Then, almost at once, the door was opened and Mrs. Lexington stood there on the threshold, her eyes full of sleep and bewilderment and curiosity. "I thought I heard something," she said, her puzzled gaze on her daughter's white, staring face. "What under the sun are you doing this time of night?"

She came a step closer and took the girl by her arm. "Cy! She's walking in her sleep!" she called, half turning her head in the direction of the bedroom she had just left.

Lily made a sound in her throat that was intended for a laugh.

"Oh, Mother! What nonsense!" she said. "I'm just as wide awake as you are—"

"You didn't speak. You didn't answer me," Mrs. Lexington cried, sharply, and then: "Well, if you aren't walking in your sleep, what are you doing? Where do you think you're going at this hour of the night? What's the matter with you?"

Not until then did Lily realize that her mother did not know about Pat and his sickness. It had become so important a fact to her, pushing most other facts out of her mind, that she felt that everyone must know about it.

"Pat's sick. I forgot to tell you. I thought I had told you," she answered, dully. "I've been thinking about him all night, until I'm half out of my mind—and now I'm going to him."

Her mother gave a kind of a groan. "Those people down there won't let you in if you do go," she said. "Why, Lily, you really must be out of your mind to think of walking out of this house at night! I never heard of anything so insane. I don't understand you at all." Her face became more and more puckered as she tried to figure Lily out.

From within the big lamplit room there was a sound of bed springs creaking, and a long-drawn sigh and yawn, and Mr. Lexington came to the door in his Indian blanket bathrobe.

"What's the matter, mother?" he wanted to know, sleepily.

Together they faced Lily, the two of them, who had been slaves to her whims and desires all her life.

"What does she want now?" Mr. Lexington asked, shivering in the cold air that came in through the windows behind him in the room. "What does she say she wants?"

"Oh, that cab driver is sick!" Mrs. Lexington spoke with all the bitterness that was in her soul. "And this wild creature of ours is going down to see him! Going down to see him, and you know as well as I do that she'll never come back—"

"Don't be silly," Lily flung at her. "He wouldn't have me if I did want to stay—and I wouldn't want to stay! I've had enough of him to last me for a lifetime! But he's terribly sick, and I'm going down there to see him, whether you like it or not. So don't stand there like Sorrow on a monument! Go back to bed and let me go!"

Noel Awaits a Summons as the Dinner Guests Arrive

THERE was an anguished finality in Noel Veritzen's voice and words which made me realize that he could not be swerved from his determination to stay away from our dinner unless his father sanctioned his presence there. I, therefore, made no attempt at protest, but spoke briskly, as if I had expected his decision.

"Then I have only one thing to ask you," I said. "Will you go back to Mrs. Ticer's and hold yourself in readiness to come over at any minute I send for you? I shall speak to your father as soon as I have the opportunity, and I am sure he will be amenable to reason. As soon as I know his attitude I will send Jim with the car either to bring you over or to acquaint you with your father's obduracy. But I am certain you will make the return trip with Jim."

He came swiftly to my side, lifted my hand and kissed it.

"Dear Mrs. Graham," he said fervently, "I wonder if you realize how many rough places you smooth over, how many crooked paths you make straight. The world would be a better place if there were more women like you in it."

He put the hand gently back, then hurried from the room, while I felt a warm little glow at my heart at the sincere tribute from the honest heart of the lonely boy.

But I had no time for reflection, pleased or anxious. Noel hardly had left the room before I heard the note of an auto horn and knew that Marion, with her usual anxiety to herald her approach to the farm, had persuaded Otto, Mr. Vertizen's dignified chauffeur, to sound a warning signal.

I hurried out to the veranda and down the steps, in the front of which Otto was just drawing up the big, luxurious car. Mary was perched upon the running board—she evidently had taken her place there as the car turned in at the gate—while Marion had her hand upon the door ready to leap out.

The car had not yet ceased its motion when she jumped out, and, running up, threw herself joyously into my arms.

"Oh, Auntie Madge," she caroled, "isn't this heavenly? It seems 300 years since I was at the farm before. Where are Uncle Dicky and Junior and Katie and Jim, and has Jerry Ticer any more horses? I've been riding up at school, and I'm crazy to get—"

"Marion!" her mother called admonishingly, and she started and looked around contritely.

"I'm so sorry, Mummy," she said in pretty confusion. "I'm awfully rude, I know, but—"

She had stepped aside at her mother's admonition, leaving me free to welcome my older guests. But I gave her a surreptitious, loving pat as I went past her with outstretched hands to greet Lillian and Mr Veritzen.

"Dicky just got home," I apologized, "and is dressing. Shall we sit here a bit or would you like to go directly to your rooms?"

"My room, as far as I'm concerned," Lillian decided promptly. "I'll have to change before dinner—when is it, anyway?"

"Seven o'clock," I answered, glad of the opportunity to settle the sartorial question so quickly. "But please do not fuss over your dressing. As you see, Mary and I are wearing simple thin gowns, and I know Mr. Veritzen," I turned to him with a casual air, "that you will be glad to know that the men are also wearing comfortable summer things."

PITTSBURGH & LAKE ERIE

Suddenly the room reeled. Jerry saw the man who had vowed eternal love for her on the divan with Ora—saw him spring up guiltily!

WHAT DOES SHE DO? WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

Does the engaged man of today play the game? Or, do the increasing frankness and daring of modern girls encourage men to flirt recklessly before marriage, and without fear afterward? In "Jerry," Elenore Meherin has written a far more powerful and more dramatic story than her famous "Chickie." In this new romance she has revealed the urge and imperious hunger for love that fills the heart of a modern girl; a reckless, lovable, brave girl who risks her life's entire happiness to find out whether the man she wants to marry loves her as utterly as he wants him to.

FRED FUSSELL

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

REPORTS that Ty Cobb, after 23 seasons in the American League, will be found with the Giants, the Dodgers or some other club in the National League this year, are not taken seriously by some of the older baseballmen in Pittsburgh.

Ty Cobb.

"I do not believe that any club in the National will be found willing to take a chance on Cobb at the fancy salary figures he may be expected to demand," said one local veteran: "The reason for this is a general opinion that Ty would not be able to approach in the old circuit the form that, in spite of his age, he has shown in the American in recent years.

"THE fact that Cobb hit .357 for the Athletics last season would appear to be a sufficient inducement for any club to grab him, as a .357 hitter would win a lot of ball games in the course of a season.

"But it is extremely doubtful if Cobb would hit anything like .357 in the National if he were to work in that circuit this year. For one thing, the splendid curve-ball pitching that he would encounter in the majority of games would give him quite a lot of trouble, and for another thing some American League players have confided to friends this winter that at the finish of last season the Georgian had slowed down almost to a walk.

"BETWEEN those fast-breaking curves around his knees, which he would not relish, and the loss of the speed that enabled him to beat out many grounders by a step, Cobb would not approach his old batting marks, in my opinion. If he signed at all, which is doubtful, it will be only as a box-office play, and his salary will be far below the estimates that have been quoted in the newspapers. I do not look for him to come into the National at all."

M'LARNIN KAYOS TERRIS

By FRED KEATS,

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Jimmy McLarnin, of the West coast, now is the leading contender for the lightweight title—and what a contender, Sid Terris passed right out of the picture before a packed house in Madison Square Garden last night, when a thunderbolt exploded on his chin, one minute and 47 seconds after the fight started. It was a clean knockout.

All kinds of records were broken. A crowd of 17,380 paid $91,365 to view the proceedings. This was a new indoor record for fights with a $10 limit. Long before the preliminaries were over every seat had been sold and the police were kept busy shooing thousands of disappointed fans away from the Garden.

MANDELL IS PLEASED

ROCKFORD, Ill., Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion of the world, today declared himself "surprised, but well pleased" over the result of the Jimmy McLarnin-Sid Terris fight in New York last night. The lightweight champion is under contract to Promoter Jim Mullen, of Chicago, to meet McLarnin in a 10-round title event there in June.

DOG CHAMPS SHOW HERE

Approximately 140 of the best dogs in America are entered in the third annual show of the Pittsburgh Collie Club, to be staged in the Pittsburgh Parking Garage, 553 Sixth avenue, from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. today. Proceeds from the event are to be turned into the milk and ice fund. A capacity crowd is expected to attend.

LOCAL SWIMMER STARS

BUFFALO, Feb. 25.—Josephine McKim, of the Carnegie Library team of Homestead, Pa., came within six inches of winning a national swimming championship here last night when she placed second to Martha Norelius, of New York, in the 220-yard free style. Florence Goss, Hannah Laughlin and Susan Laird representing Carnegie Library in the 300-yard medley, finished fourth.

WILLIE FITZGERALD DEAD

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—William Michael (Willie) Fitzgerald, who, in his 13 years in the ring, fought all the topnotchers in the lightweight class, died last night in the mailing room of the Brooklyn paper where he was employed. He was 47 years old.

DeMarco Stock Soars

By HARRY KECK,

Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor.

WITH the reinstatement of James (Red) Mason by the State Athletic Commission following a suspension of several months for a run-in with Referee Eddie Kennedy over the decision against Cuddy DeMarco in the latter's bout with Billy Wallace here, the stock of DeMarco, insofar as his chance of defeating Willie Harmon of New York when they clash in the Motor Square Garden ring Monday night are concerned, took a big boom today. It is generally expected that DeMarco will give a much better account of himself with Mason in his corner than he would with his veteran advisor on the sidelines.

In fact, under the new rule of the commission, which bars all suspended boxers, managers and seconds from any clubs under its jurisdiction, Mason would not even be allowed inside the building to see DeMarco box if the ban had not been lifted at the commission's meeting in Philadelphia yesterday.

Cuddy will wind up his training today. He will box in the Motor Square gymnasium this afternoon, and tonight he will indulge in a light workout before some Italian friends in Sharpsburg. Harmon will arrive here tomorrow morning and finish his preparation for the bout with a limbering-up drill in the Motor Square gym. The club reports unusual interest in the battle, which is only natural inasmuch as Harmon, long a favorite with the local fans, already has scored two victories over local opponents at Motor Square this season, his victims being Young Saylor and Jack Zivic.

Pete Zivic and Lou Moscowitz box a 10-rounder in New York tonight.

A card of eight amateur bouts is scheduled at the South Hills Country Club tonight for members and their friends.

Frankie Rio of Cleveland and Johnny Pollock will box the six-round main bout of the weekly show at New Castle Monday night. Johnny Vivio and Tommy Casper meet in the semi-final. George Chip, former middleweight champion, will referee.

SPORTS PROMOTER WINS $72,000 CONTRACT SUIT

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Carlos Ferrer, an associate of George Stallings, must pay damages of $72,000 to Alfred Gadbois, local sports promoter, for breach of contract in connection with the organization of the new Montreal International League Baseball Club, Gadbois testified that he and Ferrer arranged to build a stadium for the club, but declared that Ferrer had been the only one to benefit by the promotion.

Ferrer was out of the city and did not contest the action.

BUSH TO GIVE BUCS TWO DRILLS TODAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,

Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 25.—With two workouts in prospect for the day, the Pirates already in camp showed more activity as they stirred about this morning. Manager Bush inaugurated the plan of two practices today so the athletes were up and going for an early start. Morning and afternoon sessions will now be in order, and these will continue after the arrival of the infielders and outfielders, who are expected Tuesday night.

Joe Harris, veteran first baseman who played a big role in the winning of the 1927 flag, was a feature of yesterday's work-out of the National League champions. Joe came early and unannounced. In bad shape physically at the conclusion of last season, Harris tickled Donie Bush when he showed up ahead of time and with 30 pounds over his weight of last October. He appears to have regained his health.

The former American Leaguer was a bit stiff and sore this morning, but he says he feels fine and was anxious to be at it again. Joe offers a problem to Bush, provided the veteran keeps his health he may run one of the younger fellows out of a berth. George Grantham will bring along his first base glove, and, the Arizona greyhound is slated to play the bag this season. Harris, however, can play the outfield, and one berth in the pasture offers a free-for-all among several candidates. The Waner act has the other two positions clinched.

"Everything is great and I don't think we will have much trouble reaching our stride after the season opens," said Bush this morning as he discussed his squad.

"Our pitchers look fine," continued Donie. "We will have to watch some of the regulars, especially Kremer, who is always anxious to do more than his share."

VIC ALDRIDGE STILL ABSENT

By Universal Service.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 25.—With Victor Aldridge, the wandering pitcher, still missing from the ensemble, the Giants will go through another training ordeal under the personal direction of John Joseph McGraw today.

"Not a word," said John J. when asked if he had heard anything from his errant athlete. Secretary Tierney echoed the manager's sentiments, making it unanimous.

The present sojourn in this watery metropolis was instituted solely for the benefit of the pitching staff. Aldridge, a pitcher by trade, is 10 days overdue, and there are no symptoms of his immediate arrival.

LOCAL LAD IN SWIM

George Kountz, Jr., of the Arnold School will compete in the sixth annual interscholastic swimming championships at Columbia University, New York, today.

Second Buc Squad Off For Coast

WITH Rear Admiral Bill Hinchman at the helm, the Pirates' flagship, manned by some of the most able seaman on the Corsair squad, set sail from the P. & L. E. harbor at 8:20 last night bound for the Far West port, Paso Robles, where Admiral Donie Bush has many of the Buc sharpshooters in training for the 1928 baseball wars.

Only six men other than Rear Admiral Bill were on board when Hinchman pulled up the anchor and set the sails. They were Captain Pie Traynor, Sparky Adams, Lee Meadows, Clyde Barnhart, Adam Comorosky and Dr William L. Marks of Carnegie Tech. Other able-bodied seamen are to be picked up en route. Johnny Gooch is to board the bark at Chicago and Glenn Wright is to be picked up at Kansas City.

Stops are to be made at Hutchison, Kansas, for Fred Brickell, at Syracuse, Kansas, for Parker Brewer and Travea Waner, and at Los Angeles for George Grantham, George Gottlieber and Coburn Jones.

Yes and No

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Jack Dempsey positively is through. He wired me it would be inadvisable for him to fight any more.—Tex Rickard.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—Don't count me out. I may decide to fight again. I intended to retire last year, but came back to fight Tunney and may do so again.—Jack Dempsey.

CHILLY SAUCE By CHILLY DOYLE

Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 25.—Pete Scott will start as a catcher for the Pirates. The fleet outfielder who came from the Cubs in the big deal seems to prefer the pasture plots, but he might as well order shin guards and the rest of stuff that makes the catcher look like the trap-drummer of the baseball's symphony orchestra.

DONIE BUSH has stated he would inform Peter of his decision. Scott did a lot of catching while a member of the Kansas City Blues and in those days, Donie was able to watch Scott, for Bush was pilot of the Indianapolis Hoosiers. Apparently the alert Pete picked a couple of Hoosiers off the cushions at one time or another, which made a hit with Bush.

"YES, I think Pete is a good outfielder, too" mused Donie. "He is swift on his feet and he can hit, but we intend to start him out as a catcher." Donie appears to be making a wise decision on the winged-footer from Stockton. There is a crying need for a hard hitting, right-hand catcher on the roster of the National League champions. Bush has a couple of other prospects, who swing from the Delehanty side of the plate, but there is nothing certain in this direction.

FIGHT RESULTS

At New York—Jimmy Larnin knocked out Sid Terris, 1 round; Dominick Petrone defeated Lew Perfetti, 8 rounds; Willie Siegel defeated Walter Babcock, 4 rounds; Sammy Dorfman defeated Chick Suggs, 8 rounds.

At Detroit—Billy Petrolle defeated Spug Myers, 10 rounds; Joe Medill defeated Johnny Mellow, 8 rounds.

At Dayton, O.—Jackie Dugan defeated Louie DeArco, 10 rounds; Larry Heyton and Cecil Hurd drew, 8 rounds; Bill Cain defeated Jimmy Aman, 6 rounds.

At Tampa, Fla.—Jack McFarland defeated Julian Jim Moran, 10 rounds.

At Erie—Pete Petrolle defeated Tug Phillips, 10 rounds; Max Strub knocked out Joe Lamanna, 4 rounds; Joe Stone defeated Larry Marinucci, 6 rounds; Johnny Piat won by technical knockout over George Schwalie, 5 rounds.

At Hollywood, Cal.—Dick Hoppe defeated King Tut, 10 rounds.

At Vancouver, B. C.—Tod Morgan defeated Ritchie King, 10 rounds.

At El Paso, Tex.—Owen Phelps knocked out Jack Chief Elkhart, 9 rounds.

At St. Paul—Mike Mandell defeated Honey Boy Conroy, 8 rounds; Spud Murphy defeated Dave Atler, 6 rounds.

M'MILLIN TO ASSUME NEW DUTIES JULY 1

MANHATTAN, Kan., Feb. 25.—A. N. (Bo) McMillin, former Centre College football star, will report here July 1 to assume his new duties as head football coach at Kansas State Agricultural College.

McMillin last night accepted the Kansas Aggie post after obtaining his release from a coaching position at Geneva College, Beaver Falls, Pa.

The former Centre College star, who gained fame by leading his team to a victory over Harvard several years ago, will succeed Charles Bachman, who resigned to become head football coach at University of Florida.

LOCAL GOLFERS LOSE IN PINEHURST PLAY

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 25.—The two remaining Pittsburghers in the annual Seniors Golf championship on the links here were both beaten yesterday. David McLeod lost a close decision to D. C. McClure of Springfield, Mass., by 2 and 1 in the fourth division.

In the fifth division, C. F. Marshall took G. D. Boice of Princeton, N. J., to the home green but lost, one down.

FIFTH, SOUTH PLAY TONIGHT

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER

Fifth Avenue and South High will send their basketball teams against each other tonight in the South Side Market House, winding up the regular City League schedule and settling the Section I championship. If Fifth wins, which it is certainly favored to do, the Downtowners will prepare to meet Allegheny in the first game of the series for the city title next week. The game will either be played Friday or Saturday night.

Allegheny clinched the Section II lead yesterday by topping Langley, winning by a 42-17 score, and with little trouble.

West View High girls defeated Samuel Hamilton, 38 to 8, last night.

KENTUCKY DERBY ENTRY SETS RECORD

Coffee Growers Will Not Sing "Muddy Waters" at Their Convention

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH ★ SPORTS ★

196 Named For Classic

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 25.—A record of more than half a century was broken by the entry list for the 1928 Kentucky Derby, made public today by Col. Matt J. Winn.

American turfmen and women have nominated 196 three-year olds for the 54th renewal of the $50,000-added stake. That is 17 more than in 1898, the previous record year, and 34 more than last year. The entry lists closed February 8.

One hundred and twenty owners are represented, including 10 women. Almost every name of prominence on the American turf appears.

H. P. Whitney, who won the great American stake last year with Whiskery, apparently is out with a vengeance to make it two straight. He has nominated an even dozen from his extensive stable.

The 196 eligibles include 154 entire colts, 31 geldings and 11 fillies.

Only about one in 10 of those nominated will start in the Derby. The field probably will narrow down to 20 or thereabouts before they parade to the post on the afternoon of Saturday, May 19. The quality and present condition of many of those nominated, however, leads to the prospect of a large field and a rich purse.

The 196 nominated already have contributed $25 each as a nominating subscription, making $4,900 towards the purse. To that, the Jockey Club will add $50,000, of which $40,000 will go to the winner, $6,000 to the second horse $3,000 to the third and $1,000 to the fourth. In addition, each actual starter will contribute $500 more. If 20 start, the purse therefore will be approximately $65,000. The winning owner will receive in addition a gold cup from the club.

night, the Dukes are hopelessly out of the Conference race and Westminster is all but in. The worst the U. P.'s can do is tie, and then they will have to lose all of their remaining games.

Thiel, you will note, led from the start, and outplayed the Dukes in about every department of the game, including the scoring, which after all, is THE important thing.

Carnegie Tech made a desperate bid for its first victory against West Virginia last night, and for the greater part of the game the Mountaineers did all they could to help 'em. At half time, Tech held a 22-21 lead, and increased it to 25-17 in the second half before the visitors could score. But some expert field goal flinging by Glenn, Taylor and Black finally put West Virginia out in front, while the Tartan attack fizzled completely. The Tartans looked the best they have all season, however.

Tonight Pitt seeks its seventeenth win and Wash-Jeff will be looking for a fifth. The Presidents have broken even in eight games, winning over West Virginia, Bethany, Allegheny and Tech, while losing to Waynesburg twice and to Grove City and Allegheny. The lineup:

second week in succession, a semi-final game of the Western Pennsylvania senior soccer championship will be staged.

There is more than passing interest in the game for it brings before the fans Heidelberg, America's national amateur champions, in opposition to the Pittsburgh Internationals.

HOCKEY

the Pirates, who failed to register a tally in two games this week, are to battle on Duquesne Garden ice tonight, and unless the boys turn over a new leaf and change their habits they will battle to a scoreless tie. Four of the last five games in which the Senators have engaged have been no-score affairs, and in the other joust Ottawa tallied once and topped the Canadiens, 1-0. The Pirates, too, are no novices at the business of engaging in deadlocks, having participated in no less than eight this season, and when it is recalled that the last one was a 0-0 draw with this same Ottawa club the reasons for a scoreless draw forecast become obvious.

BOAST STRONG DEFENSE

Nighbor, Clancy, George Boucher and Connell are the four gentlemen who have done most to give the Senators' defense a reinforced concrete aspect. Who the Bucs attack tonight they first will meet Mr. Nighbor, generally regarded as the most expert poke-checker of this or any other day. Mr. Nighbor plays center and commits more grand larceny in mid-ice than any other man wearing skates. The few attackers who pass Nighbor and find that they still are in possession of the puck generally are so surprised that they are in no condition or position to survive the extremely warm welcome invariably extended by the giant defenders. Mr. Clancy and Mr. Boucher. The embrace of this duo is cavemanish in the extreme, and after they have finished their task the befuddled would-be scorer has no difficulty in believing Mr. Connell when he says "they shall not pass."

LAST VISIT HERE

Tonight's will be Ottawa's last appearance here. In three previous meetings the Pirates and Senators divided honors, each winning once before playing to their recent 0-0 tie. The Bucs achieved their win by a 2-1 margin in one of the most stirring fights ever staged on local ice, and there is no reason to believe that tonight's joust will be at all wanting in thrills and spills.

The Bucs' recent slump is not surprising when it is recalled that they had to maintain a whirlwind pace for six solid weeks to climb into their present play-off position. Something of a let-down was expected after such a prolonged drive, and as yet there is no reason to believe that the locals' slump is other than temporary.

The probable lineup:

Pirates.		Ottawa.
Worters	G	Connell
Burke	D	Clancy
McCaffrey	D	Boucher
Mills	C	Nighbor
Darragh	W	Kilrea
Cotton	W	Finnigan

Pirate spares—Drury, White, McCarty, McKinnon, Smith.

Ottawa spares — Denneny, Broadbent, Goffin, A. Smith, Grosvenor.

Time of game—8:30.

PITT SWIMMERS WIN

The undefeated Pitt varsity swimming team won its second meet of the season with Wooster College of Ohio in Trees pool last night, downing the Buckeye Staters by a 45-17 score.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Heppe, Jake Schaefer and Welker Cochrane over the proposed covering of the diamonds in the table rails for a match at three-cushion billiards.

Harry Oswald.

Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia, who, like Harry Oswald of this city, is to play in the world championship pocket billiard tournament next month, and who came to Pittsburgh this week and was matched with Oswald for a special 1,000-ball contest for a $250 purse to be played at Charley Ellis' room starting next Monday, says the covering of the diamonds would be the beginning of a practice that might work to the general detriment of the angle game.

PONZI, in addition to being good enough at pocket billiards to be chosen as one of the 10 to play from a field of 24 entrants, is a high-class three-rail player, being rated in Philadelphia as but a few points slower than Otto Reiselt, his fellow townsman, who holds the championship.

"Anything that in the least degree tends to give the beginner or the average player a lower estimate of the value of the diamonds on the table," says Ponzi, "is a bad thing for the game. For if the diamonds are disregarded there can be no real improvement, no system.

"Why, it was not until Layton and Cannefax and a few others worked out their systems based on the diamonds that any real progress was made in three-rails. Just look at the old averages made under the 'guess' method.

"Of course, a pastime player doesn't need to learn these intricate systems like the stars, but he will play immeasurably better if he follows the diamonds. Taking them off is like asking a surveyor to lay out a road without his instruments."

PITT'S unbeaten basketball team, with 16 consecutive victories to its credit, will endeavor to clear one more hurdle and hang up its seventeenth triumph in the Panther stadium tonight at the expense of the Washington and Jefferson college five.

R. KIRKMAN.

It will be the first meeting of the season with Red and Black, and though Pitt's sensational work all season would appear to indicate another victory Captain Roger Kirkman and his mates are likely to make them hustle.

The Panthers have made an average of a fraction above 48 points per game in the 16 contests decided to date. The individual scoring records of Coach Carlson's passers follow:

MANAGER Bill McKechnie of the Cardinals makes it clear that he is not going to lose any sleep worrying over any such holdout as Pitcher Flint Rhem this spring.

"The St. Louis club is not going to make any overtures to Rhem," Bill declares. "He has made a habit of holding out in the past, and has not shown me enough to warrant the club's laying itself at his feet. When he reports, if he does report, he will have to hustle to show me how good he is if he wants to remain on our pitching staff. The best remedy I know for this fellow is to leave him alone.

McKECHNIE

"We do not have to worry about Rem, when we have such pitchers as Alexander, Haines, Sherdel, Reinhart and Frankhouse on hand."

One Feels Like Saluting On Crossing Texas Border

By B. C. FORBES

IN TEXAS, Feb. 25.

ON shipboard I once saw a group of Austrians doff their hats when they came within sight of Trieste and some knelt and kissed the ground when they landed. Somehow I feel that I should raise my hat and salute Texas when I cross her boundless portals. I have mixed much with Texans, you see. Texas, what oratory the Lone Star State incites—inspires, I should rather say.

Texas, an empire of 265,896 square miles, besides which most European countries look lilliputian; Texas, with a population of 5,397,000, and a trade territory of 20,000,000 population; Texas with 16,000 miles of railroads, 4,500 miles of electric transmission lines, 660,000 telephones, 443,000 miles of wires, $641,000,000 invested in public utilities, $500,000,000 in mineral production. Texas, boasting more than a million automobiles, 180,000 miles of public roads and 20,000 miles of improved highways.

Texas the greatest of all cotton states, producing from one-fourth to one-third of America's total cotton crop and leading the world in cotton-seed oil products. Leader of the world, too, in sulphur production—and destined to lead in potash. Texas, the state incalculably rich in oil, in natural gas, in lignite.

Texas, able to feed, under proper irrigation and cultivation, the world's total population of almost two billion souls.

Why not hats off in salute?

TEXAS, despite low-priced cotton, strikes me thus far as unusually prosperous. Liquid gold, as Texans call oil, is spouting from thousands of wells, pouring millions and millions of money into myriads of pockets. Natural gas, an industry bounding forward by giant leaps, is swelling the state's wealth as never before.

Then, cattle prices have ruled exceptionally high, making many ranches profitable. Other farm animals have recovered since the drought of 1926. Hides, wool, mohair have brought in additional millions.

Railroad building has been abnormally active in South Texas, tapping lands of incomparable richness and productiveness, especially in the Rio Grande valley, a territory of infinite potentialities.

TEXAS ginned 4,130,805 bales of cotton up to January 15, the government's estimate to March 20, 4,250,000 bales; the official crop statistics for 1927-27 showed 5,454,000 bales. Incidentally, the governors of various southern states, including the popular Dan Moody of this state, have been conferring on how to bring about, without fail, a substantial curtailment of acreage. Bankers are appealed to for effective co-operation, a wise move theoretically, but rather a slender reed to lean on.

Parenthetically, Texans hope that their youthful Governor will be nominated for the vice presidency if Gov. Smith is chosen as standard-bearer. His pay as Governor is only $4,000.

HERE are some figures authoritatively supplied: The Rio Grande valley planted 2,000,000 additional citrus trees in 1927. The district shipped 1,500 carloads of citrus last year, when all the trees already planted mature that figure will be doubled.

Some 40,000 carloads of fruits and vegetables were shipped out of Texas in 1926-27. An increase of 60 per cent over the previous year, according to J. Austen Hunter of the Department of Agriculture. Watermelons led, with 5,784 carloads; cabbage followed, with 5,351 cars; spinach was third, 4,515 cars; onions, 4,021 cars, and mixed vegetables, 6,300 cars. Irish potato shipments totaled 2,026 cars; sweet potatoes, 856 cars; tomatoes, 3,196; string beans, 330; grapefruit, 7,737; lettuce, 89; strawberries, 194 cars. Figs are a coming crop of importance. Turkeys shipped represented a value of approximately $35,000,000.

THE increase in Texas industries last year is put at $268,000,000. That is puny contrasted with what shall be—and before many years, too.

Texas, overtowering geographically, is destine to become overtowering agriculturally, and later industrially.

FIREPROOFINGS HOLD STEADY

Dixie Gas preferred was a feature of the dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange in the short, week-end session today. Business was on a slightly larger scale in the general list with prices displaying a firm tone.

Buying of Dixie preferred was steady at prices near the best levels for the stock. Strength in the issue has been evident for several weeks and is based primarily on the expansion plans announced in connection with an offering of new securities a short time ago. It is expected the company's gas production will be more than doubled within the next 18 months. Current production is in the neighborhood of 250,000,000 cubic feet a day.

Changes in the directorate of the National Fireproofing Company had no material influence on the shares today and both the common and preferred sold at prices near the previous closings.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 5 points to a decline of 2 points and showed not gains of 5 to 13 points after the opening. All months made new high ground for the movement on further covering and buying promoted by relatively firm reports from Liverpool cables and the local firmness of yesterday.

Talk of possible shipment from the local stock was reflected by the relatively firm ruling of near months, but the advance to 18.17c for May and 18.26c for October attracted considerable realizing. This caused reactions to about yesterday's closing quotations, but the market was fairly steady at the end of the first hour.

Private cables said there had been covering, trade calling and scarce buying on better Manchester reports and the firmer tone of the market for Egyptian cotton.

Futures closed steady, 10 points higher to 6 lower. March, 18.37; May, 18.73-76; July 18.03-70; October, 18.43-45; December, 18.29-40. Spot steady, middling, 19.05.

Range on cotton futures, reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
March	18.50	18.69	18.45	18.57
May	18.68	18.77	18.64	18.73
July	18.72	18.78	18.64	18.67
September	18.47	18.56	18.37	18.43
December	18.44	18.50	18.25	18.39

WABASH SOARS ON CONTROL RUMORS

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Heavy buying of Wabash common, which soared 6¼ points to 66 on rumors of competitive buying for control, featured today's stock market. Price movements in the general list lacked uniformity, although rails showed a pronounced upward trend and most of the industrials pointed upward.

Speculative uneasiness over the brokers' loan situation was reflected in the persistent liquidation of certain stocks on all rallies, and the hurry to unload on the first signs of weakness in others. Airplane stocks, which had soared to high altitudes on buying influenced by the successful long distance flights last year, broke sharply to new 1928 lows, Wright Aeronautical falling 6 points. Mack Trucks dropped 4 points to a new low for the year around 95. Adams Express collapsed 20 points to 259 on one sale.

The announcement that W. F. Dickson was seeking proxies for Wabash stock in an effort to get representation for minority interests on the board, brought a flood of buying into that issue which carried it 15 points above the year's low; St. Louis Southwestern advanced 3 points and Western Maryland and Erie common 2 each. About a dozen other rails advanced a point or so.

Fox Film ran up 4 points on the announcement that merger negotiations were pending whereby that company would acquire the Stanley theaters. Strength of American Sugar Refining, Howe Sound and Oppenheim Collins contrasted with the heaviness of Montgomery Ward and Greene Cananea Copper.

The closing was irregular. Total sales approximated 1,000,000 shares.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Universal Pictures.

Universal Pictures, Inc., reports for the year 1927, net income of $1,502,658 after all charges and taxes, equal, after preferred dividends, to $4.44 a share on 240,000 common shares, against $1,-806,005, or $6.49 a share in 1926.

Indiana Standard Adjusts Gas.

Standard Oil Company of Indiana has reduced tank wagon and service station prices of gasoline 2 cents in Illinois on account of the Illinois state tax being killed by the Supreme Court. Chicago wholesale prices now are 14 cents per gallon and service station prices 16 cents.

Seminole Output Down.

The Seminole area for the 24 hours ended at 7 a. m. Friday produced 301,-455 barrels of crude oil, against 308,235 Thursday and peak of 327,400 barrels on July 26, 1927.

Associated Gas and Electric.

Preliminary earnings account of the Associated Gas and Electric Company for the calendar year 1927, shows gross earnings and other income of $19,-339,706, an increase of $3,816,467 over 1926. Net earnings after operating expenses, maintenance, all taxes, etc., were $10,740,114, an increase of $1,615,-545. Despite an increase of $1,445,216 in the amount paid or accrued as preferred dividends to subsidiary and affiliated companies and all interest of the company and subsidiaries, the balance for Associated Gas and Electric Company dividends and depreciation amounted to $7,675,442, an increase of $2,152,817. Net income applicable to dividends and surplus, after provisions for replacements, renewals and retirement of fixed capital (depreciation) was $5,374,711, an increase of $2,111,-949.

Oppenheim, Collins & Co.

Oppenheim, Collins & Co. report for six months ended January 28, 1928, net earnings of $723,416.74 after taxes and all charges equal to $4.82 a share on the 200,000 shares common capital stock then outstanding, compared with $1,-000,364.41, or $5.00 a share in corresponding period of previous year. For February 15, 1928, a 10 per cent stock dividend, amounting to 20,000 shares, was paid, increasing the outstanding stock to 220,000 shares. The company reports sales for the quarter ended January 31, 1928, of $6,312,501 compared with $7,032,541 in the quarter ended January 31, 1927.

Brockway-Indiana Truck.

The merger of the Brockway Motor Truck Company, of New York, with the Indiana Truck Company, of Marion, Ind., with combined assets exceeding $5,000,000, has been announced. Based on the sales of the two companies last year, more than $15,000,000, the merged companies will be one of the three largest concerns in the country manufacturing motor trucks, George A. Brockway, president of the Brockway company, will head the combined organization.

Victor Talking Machine.

Victor Talking Machine Company reports for the year 1927, consolidated net income of $1,569,748, after depreciation, depletion, etc., equal after preferred dividends, to $6.55 a share on 221,000 common shares, against $7,383,104 or $10.16 a share in 1926.

Congoleum-Nairn Gains.

Congoleum-Nairn, Inc., reports for the year 1927 consolidated net income of $1,-067,420 after depreciation and federal taxes, equal, after preferred dividends, to 59 cents a share on 1,641,092 common shares outstanding with net of $805,420 in 1926.

New Fireproofing Directors.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the National Fireproofing Company the following were elected to the board of directors: Frank Wilbur Mahl, succeeding W. Gwinner, resigned; William J. Heuer, succeeding E. H. Strouh, resigned; Ernest Mellvaine, succeeding William J. Ruffle, resigned, and A. M. Forbes, Jr.

Oil Stocks Up in January.

Total stocks of crude and refined oil products gained 7,327,470 barrels in January, according to preliminary figures. Bradley stocks and crude oil stocks in pipe lines and tank farms east of the Rockies increased 5,420,000 barrels, while stocks on the Pacific Coast gained 1,907,470 barrels. Gasoline stocks east of the Rockies increased 2,000,000 barrels. Part of the increase in January was due to larger imports of crude oil. Stocks of foreign crude oil gained 1,421,000 barrels.

C. and O. for January.

The Chesapeake and Ohio reports for January:

	1928	1927
Jan. oper. rev.	$5,961,500	$10,975,044
Net oper. inc.	2,222,824	4,239,151
Net income	1,572,016	2,995,054

Houston's Share Earnings.

Houston Oil Company net income for 1927 is equal, after 6 per cent cumulative preferred dividends, to $7.54 a share on 240,685 common shares, compared with $6.17 a share in 1926.

Bell Tel. Expansion Plans.

Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania directors have appropriated $7,-645,510 for new construction, making a total of $11,645,510 for January and February. Of the February appropriation $1,350,000 is for development of telephone plant in Philadelphia.

Coke Oven Operations Increased.

The H. C. Frick Coke Company has placed 370 coke ovens in operation. About 200 or more are to be started at Hecla No. 3 and 171 additional at Herrwood. Other increases are expected within the next week or two.

Rail Shares Doing Better.

Despite the indication that no important rail merger will be accomplished pending new legislation, the rails gave evidence that they were moving more favor in some quarters than the industrials. Watch stood out as rumors spread of an agreement between Loree and other eastern rail magnates whom he has been fighting rather hard up until recently. One report was that Loree had agreed to dispose of his Wabash holdings to Baltimore and Ohio interests. However, until Congress acts on a new transportation act no definite consolidation development is looked for. Rock Island reflected belief that an extra dividend of 1 per cent would be declared at a meeting a fortnight hence.

Lehn & Fink.

Some traders are quietly picking up Lehn & Fink in the belief that it is undervalued in relation to other stocks in its class. At current levels the stock is less than 10 points above its 1927 low of 81½, whereas the shares of other companies handling trademark drug products have scored sweeping advances. United Drug, for instance, is up nearly 40 points from last year's low, while Sterling Products is up 41 points, and American Home Products more than 30 points.

United States Steel.

Steel broke through 110 again, but met support there. Nervousness aroused by the continued heavy selling of the stock was enhanced by the numerous rumors as to the source of the offerings. One of the clearest traders on the New York floor, it was reported, had handled most of the liquidation of the last few sessions. Some placed the tonnage at as much as 200,000 shares. Size of a block of stock of that size usually indicates that somebody had good reason. The manner in which the market absorbed such liquidation, however, was rather good evidence that there are plenty of funds for purchase of the better grade stocks. Steel is the only industry entering the much talked of improvement in business, with other major lines below the operating and sales levels of a year ago.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that Ordinance, Bill No. 559, has been introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh, February 20, 1928, amending an ordinance entitled:

"An ordinance regulating and restricting the location of trades and industries and the location of buildings designed for specified uses and regulating and limiting the height and bulk of buildings hereafter erected or altered, and regulating and determining the area of yards, courts and other open spaces in connection with buildings hereafter erected or altered, and establishing the boundaries of districts for the said purposes; conferring certain powers upon the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection; providing for a Board of Appeals; and imposing penalties," approved August 9, 1923, by changing the Zone Map, Sheet Z-O-E-39, so as to (a) extend the "A" Residence Use District so as to include all that certain property, now classified as "B" Residence Use, within the area bounded by Hobart street, Terrace way, Covede street, and a line parallel with and 256.46 feet east of Murdoch street, (b) change from a thirty-five foot height to an one hundred-foot height district and from a First Area and Second Area District to a Fourth Area District all that certain property within the above described area.

And that a public hearing will be held by the Council of the City of Pittsburgh to consider said ordinance at the Council Chamber, Fifth floor, City-County Building, Pittsburgh, Pa., at 2:00 o'clock P. M., on Wednesday, March 7th, 1928.

RODT. CLARK,
City Clerk.

Bill No. 415.

An ordinance widening Dawes street in the Sixteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from the easterly line of John Eichley, Jr., Plan westwardly to the city line and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that Dawes street in the Sixteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from the easterly line of John Eichley, Jr., Plan to the city line shall be widened to a uniform width of 32.50 feet so that the street as widened shall lie between the following described lines:

The northerly line shall coincide with the northerly line of Dawes street (formerly Luther street) as laid out in the John Eichley, Jr. Plan of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book Volume 25, page 178.

The southerly line shall be parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 32.50 feet southwardly from the above described northerly line.

Section 2. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Dawes street in the Sixteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from the easterly line of John Eichley, Jr., Plan to the city line to be widened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this ordinance.

Section 3. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

Section 4. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

No. 64.

AN ORDINANCE — Supplementing an ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance authorizing and directing the purchase from the Estate of Richard Parker of a certain piece of ground situate in the Fifth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, and providing for the payment of the purchase money therefor," approved December 8, 1927, by authorizing the City of Pittsburgh to assume the sewer assessment on Francis and Morgan Streets.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance authorizing and directing the purchase from the Estate of Richard Parker of a certain lot or piece of ground situated in the Fifth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, and providing for the payment of the purchase money therefor," approved December 8, 1927, recorded in Ordinance Book Vol. 39, page 345, be supplemented by authorizing the City of Pittsburgh to assume the sewer assessments on Francis and Morgan streets upon transfer of property.

Section 2. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

Passed in Council February 20, 1928.

Approved February 22, 1928.

CHARLES H. KLINE, Mayor.

Recorded in O. B. Vol. 39, page 511.

CITY OF PITTSBURGH, PENNSYLVANIA.

Notice of Sale of Bonds

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the City Controller of the City of Pittsburgh until the 6th day of March, 1928, at 10:00 a. m., for the purchase of $125,000 ELECTRIC TRAFFIC CONTROL SIGNAL BONDS, 1928.

Said bonds will be dated as of February 1, 1928, and will mature in ten (10) equal annual installments on February 1st of each year from 1929 to 1938, inclusive. Said bonds will bear interest at the rate of four and one-quarter per centum (4¼%) per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of February and August in each year without deduction for any taxes which may be levied thereon by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania pursuant to any present or future law.

Said bonds will be coupon bonds of the denomination of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) and Five Hundred Dollars ($500), exchangeable at the option of the holder at any time for a registered bond or bonds of the same maturity and of the denomination of One Hundred Dollars ($100) or a multiple thereof not exceeding the aggregate principal amount of the coupon bond or bonds surrendered in exchange therefor.

Unless all bids are rejected the said bonds will be sold to the highest responsible bidder complying with the terms of sale. No bid for said bonds at less than par and accrued interest from the date of said bonds to the date of delivery will be accepted. The right is reserved to reject all bids and any bid not complying with the provisions hereof will be rejected.

All bidders are required to deposit a certified check drawn to the order of the City of Pittsburgh, on a National Bank or Trust Company for two per centum (2%) of the principal amount of bonds bid for. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned upon the award of the bonds. No interest will be allowed upon the amount of the check of the successful bidder and such check will be retained and applied in part payment for the bonds to secure the City against any loss resulting from the failure of the bidder to comply with the terms of his bid.

Proposals should be addressed to John H. Henderson, City Controller, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and enclosed in a sealed envelope, marked on the outside "Proposal for Bonds." Bids must be made upon blank forms which may be obtained from the City Controller.

The successful bidder will be furnished with the opinion of Messrs. Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay, of Pittsburgh, that the bonds are binding and legal obligations of the City of Pittsburgh.

JOHN H. HENDERSON,
City Controller.

Dated Pittsburgh, Pa., February 18, 1928.

NOTICE is hereby given that ordinance, copy of which is published herewith, was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on January 23, 1928, pursuant to the provisions of the several acts of Assembly authorizing said City, without any petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys, or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — A Crushing Blow

TRAVELING MEMBERS OF THE BUNGLE CLAN HAVE SO OFTEN PUT THEIR BEST FOOT TOO FAR FORWARD, THAT GEORGE AND JOSEPHINE MADE ONLY A NATURAL MISTAKE IN DISCOURAGING THE TWO UNUSUAL RELATIVES WHO LEFT THE BUNGLE HOME EARLY THIS WEEK.
I DIDN'T GET A WINK OR SLEEP ALL NIGHT THINKING ABOUT HENRY AND MABEL. I'VE JUST ABOUT REACHED THE CONCLUSION THAT IT'S SILLY TO WORRY ABOUT PEOPLE WHO ARE CERTAINLY RESPONSIBLE FOR GIVING US THE IMPRESSION THAT THEY WERE — WELL, JUST ORDINARY RELATIVES.
ABSOLUTELY! IF THEY HAVENT ANY MORE RESPECT FOR US THAN TO LET US GET THE IDEA THEY CAME IN HERE MERELY TO SAVE A HOTEL BILL, I'LL SAY THEY HAVE A LOT OF CRUST. AND I'M GOOD AND SORE ABOUT IT.
WHAT MAKES YOUR HAND SHAKE, ARE YOU NERVOUS?
WELL, YES AND NO! I SUPPOSE I'M TOO SENSITIVE BUT WHEN I GET A DEAL LIKE THIS AND LAY AWAKE ALL NIGHT THINKING HOW EASY IT COULD BE AVOIDED, IT JUST GETS MY GOAT.
AREN'T YOU GOING TO GET UP NOW? I HAVE BREAKFAST READY AND—
I DON'T WANT ANY BREAKFAST. AND I GUESS I'LL JUST LAY HERE A WHILE. I'M NOT EXACTLY UNDER THE WEATHER BUT WHEN YOUR OWN FLESH AND BLOOD HANDS YOU A ROUGH DEAL IT'S HARD TO TAKE. OH, WELL THERE'S RELATIVES FOR YOU!

ELLA CINDERS — The Ancient Miner

Ella and Jim Blunt just spotted an old prospector who might be Panamint Perkins.....
HOWDY, STRANGER! IN YOUR TRAVELS HAVE YOU SEEN ANYTHING OF A YOUNG MAN ABOUT YOUR OWN AGE NAMED PANAMINT PERKINS?
YEP, I SEED HIM— MUSTA BEEN TWO MONTHS AGO OR MAYBE SIX. HE ALLOWED HE WAS HEADIN' FER CALIFORNY—OR WUZ IT MEXICO? SAID HE WANTED TO FIND A COUNTRY WHERE A MAN COULD TAKE A WALK WITHOUT FALLIN' ALL OVER FLIVVERS!
I'VE JUST GOT TO SEE HIM AND FIND THE MINE BEFORE ASA KADOS SELLS ALL THE BLUE SKY TO INVESTORS AND MAKES THEM BLUE, TOO!
DON'T WORRY, ELLA— I'LL GIVE YOU A HOIST!
Just a pal— that's Jim Blunt! But how can he help? We'll see!

BUGS BAER Says

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 22.

HAVE finally figured reason why America and England are willing to allow small nations to retain submarines.

We have plenty of depth bombs left over from last year.

If there are no submarines in next war then all those depth bombs will be wasted.

Bill Collier and I celebrated Washington's Birthday by chopping down a cherry tree. A cocoanut fell on my head and made me so weak-minded that I cannot tell anything but the truth.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

They had a costume ball at the Royal Poinciana and I got in disguised as a butler. Collier put a postage stamp on his chin and went as a registered letter.

The main topic of conversation was Senator Jim Reed's reply when Kansas asked him about prohibition.

Read said, "The Democratic party has bigger fish to fry."

It is going to make Borah very angry when he hears that Reed has called him a fish.

When you compare the size of the string you must admit that prohibition ain't no minnow.

Still, the Reed answer to the Kansas question is a good one. When it does not beg the subject, it helps to send the inquisitive reporters to the poor house of information.

There were some big fish fried last week down in Washington. And they were fried in oil.

Senator Reed's reply is considered perfectly official among the national politicians. It scratches no paint, dents no crown fenders and pats no porcupines.

It is an answer we could all use when the income tax man digs up those 1924 statements. It is a beautiful chunk of oratory when the landlord comes around for the rent. It is undisputable logic when the revenue agent crashes the front door and grabs the evidence.

We are approaching the utopia of personal freedom when we reach that stage of equality where a fish is an alibi.

And a frying pan is corroboration.

Proposed Street Changes Should Get Consideration

City and county officials have been asked by the Better Traffic Committee to make street changes around the jail and elsewhere in order to assure greater freedom of traffic. The specific intent is to forestall problems expected to result with the opening of the new Liberty Bridge in April. The committee recommends that the city and county co-operate to bring these changes about before the bridge is turned over to use of the public.

Among the recommendations is the widening of Forbes street, from Diamond to Magee street, narrowing the sidewalk on the Fifth avenue side of the jail property and eliminating the sidewalk on the Diamond street side of the jail. Another proposal is the purchase of the Pittsburgh Railways Company right of way by which it extends Sixth avenue beyond Fifth avenue to connect with Forbes street.

The latter is a matter that especially should be given consideration by city officials. That little stretch of street that is not a public thoroughfare, although used as such, should be made one. It should be acquired, widened and made part of Sixth avenue proper.

The other recommendations made by the committee, too, are likely to be found to have behind them weight of sensible survey and forevision of traffic tangles which are constantly increasing. It is the part of wisdom to give care to such matters at a time when it can be done most conveniently and economically.

Our Boys Want to Fly
Let Them Learn

S. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary for air, deeply interested, as is his chief, Secretary Davis, in aviation, says this country lacks fliers. He "deplored the lack of men fit for service."

Secretary Davis might send to each important college in the United States, one or two good, SAFE flying machines, with capable instructors, and announce that all college boys, their parents consenting, will be taught flying. Thanks, partly, to enthusiasm aroused by Lindbergh, at least five thousand college men a year would gladly learn flying.

They teach flying at English universities. Why not try here at the Universities of Wisconsin, California, Chicago, Yale, Harvard, Princeton and a few others to start?

A Contrast in Faces
Calles of Mexico—Morrow of the U. S. A.

DWIGHT MORROW TALKS TO PRESIDENT CALLES.

On the right, in the bigger, higher chair, because of his rank, sits Calles, powerful, fighting President of Mexico.

On the left, Dwight Morrow, college classmate of President Coolidge, until lately partner in the J. Pierpont Morgan Company, now United States Ambassador to Mexico.

These heads and faces will be studied with interest.

President Calles's head and body are built for power, action, DOING THINGS. That strong neck will stand much pressure, and carry its owner through hard fights if necessary.

Ambassador Morrow on the left, carries his strength in that marvelously well developed back head, strong chin, and well developed nose. Men, great mentally, usually have noses bigger than the average.

And the American business man of power usually has an extremely well developed BACK head. That is where the driving force lies. The imaginative powers are in the front brain, back of the forehead.

President Calles is built to SMASH HIS WAY THROUGH, regardless of resistence, and the will of others.

Dwight Morrow is built to PERSUADE, to use adroit intelligence rather than dominating power of will.

Two interesting faces here and that of the American Ambassador shows a man well chosen by President Coolidge, for the work Mr. Morrow has to do in Mexico.

THE IRONING COMES NEXT

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Thoughts on Vibration

HEAT is a rapid, invisible, vibration of the constituent molecules of a body, and this vibration may transmit itself to surrounding bodies, or to a gaseous medium like air, by causing their molecules also to vibrate in unison.

The "burn" that a hot iron inflicts upon the hand touching it is a result of the intense vibration of the molecules of flesh induced by contact with the quivering molecules of the iron. In their resulting agitation the molecules of flesh are torn apart, their physiological organization is broken up, and a "wound" is produced.

The energy of the excited iron shakes its molecules so fiercely that they set the surrounding ether into corresponding vibrations called light-waves, so that the iron glows with a red color. Yet even then the molecular vibration does not suffice to disintegrate the solid iron as it disintegrates the tender flesh to which it is transmitted.

But the intensity of the vibration may be increased by continued "heating" of the iron until the molecules so far lose their grip upon one another that they begin to glide about, and then the rigid bar suddenly collapses into a blazing-hot, flowing liquid. It is even possible to make the vibration so great that the liquid iron is thrown into iron vapor. That happens naturally in the sun, where clouds of iron are more numerous than clouds of water vapor in the admosphere of the earth.

But heat exists not only in what we ordinarily call hot bodies or substances, but in such things as snow banks and ice cream. When a spoonful of ice cream tingles on your tongue, or perhaps causes a momentary spasm in your throat, what happens is that your warm tissues are supplying higher vibrations to the molecules of the ice-cold substance, which shake them apart so that they "melt," while the reaction upon your mouth and tongue causes a lowering of the vibration rate and a momentary stiffening of the tissues, which may even have a painful effect.

But there is abundant molecular vibration in the ice before any external heat is supplied to it. A creature made of ice would feel the effect of the waving of a human hand over him as we feel the gush of sunshine when a cloud passes off. And this iceman would, in his turn, be a very warm companion for another creature made of a substance colder than ice. Into the world of absolute zero he would drop like a red-hot bomb.

So, we see that we not only dwell amidst endless vibrations, but that it is by vibrations that we live. We are made up of vibrations. Life is like a musical note cast off from a trembling string. It goes vibrating through space-time, catching and responding to other notes, stealing and giving harmony, until it is thrown out of its adjustments by some too powerful, too discordant, influx of the universal energy. We all are confined to our wavelengths—men, microbes and suns. All life is genial, for its keynote is heat.

Freedom of Tresses

HAIR dressers in convention gravely broadcast the dictum that the bob is passe and that spit-curls sideburns and such "flapper delights" are for a long time to come, taboo.

Ears are to be covered, they declare, except for discreet tips exposed. Emphatically they say they have not the slightest sympathy for women who still parade bobbed hair.

All of which is very interesting and, in a way, highly amusing.

But truncated tresses found their way into popularity because they were at once sanitary, attractive and comfortable. The bobbed bean, as the boys appreciatively term it, is here to stay.

THOUGHTS OF THE GREAT—

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of the ages may be preserved by the quotation.—Isaac Disraeli.

Death presses heavily on that man who, being too well known to others, dies in ignorance of himself. —Seneca.

Once Overs
By J. J. MUNDY

That Old Longing

SOMETIMES you feel that you would like to get away from your family for a time.

No thought of deserting home—but you wish to do just what you want to do and nothing else for a while.

To be without responsibility, to be beyond the sound of human voice, to be away from anyone who could dictate to you, is your desire.

And many others feel the same way, for it is not unusual.

Perhaps your life partner feels the same way, but has not expressed it.

In all lives there are times when a radical change is sought.

Often it is wise to favor this longing for a change.

Not as a permanent arrangement, but as a vacation; it does folk good to get out of the rut and routine of their daily lives.

Such an absence is sometimes the best way to realise how dear home is to you, and how much you love the home folk.

It is not strange that busy lives need this change.

Take a few days off when you can, and insist on your wife doing the same.

The Rhyming Optimist
By ALINE MICHAELIS

Old Chinese Poem

MANY the years that have flown away
Since Yang-ti wrote on an April day
Of the willow-buds and the tranquil stream
Where the moon's gold lanterns at evening gleam.
Many the years since the emperor knew
The spell of the moonlight and mist and dew,
Since he drifted down in his gilded boat
Where the sea-winds sing and the first stars float.
Kings and their kingdoms have come and gone,
But the glamor of April dusk lives on.

Tales that are Told

Bought—and Sold!

FRANK and Emmeline were very happy in their little flat. There was only one fly in the otherwise perfect ointment. Emmeline had no idea of the value of money. At least, that was Frank's idea.

Frank was very fond of buns—big, brown, new buns. But the buns his wife gave him were small and uninteresting, so he decided to buy them himself.

One evening on his way home he entered a baker's shop.

"I want four of those buns," said he, pointing to a trayful of the kind he hankered for. "I know the price—four for threepence."

"But, sir—" began the girl behind the counter.

"Now, look here," said he, "I know all about buns. I will pay you threepence for four and not a penny more."

Without another word they were handed to him. When he arrived home he showed his purchase to his wife.

"There you are—that's the way to buy buns; no nonsense about the price—four for threepence! And they're glad to get it, too!"

"Really, dear!" answered his wife. "Certainly they're nice buns, but why pay threepence for four halfpenny ones, darling?"—Exchange.

Scored

AN AMERICAN visitor, who appeared in a black tie and dinner jacket at a dinner party in London where all the other guests were in more formal attire, turned the tables on them successfully.

"I asked a friend whether a black tie would be all right for this dinner party," he remarked in his speech. "But when I said the dinner was being given by our host, I was told I would have to wear a white tie. Having pointed out that I had only a dinner jacket with me and that there was not enough time to have dress clothes made for me," the man continued, "I was advised to try a firm of ready-made clothiers who specialise in hiring out garments for the evening.

"I took his advice. I went there. I asked for some dress clothes.

"'Dress clothes?' said the salesman. 'We have everything else—riding breeches, fancy dress, morning coats, but we are completely out of dress clothes.'

"'How is that?'" I asked.

"'Oh,' said the salesman, 'Lord Blank (the host) is giving a dinner party tonight.'"

The Diplomat

BINKS dashed into the village postoffice just in time to catch the only post that left during the day, and, throwing a parcel on to the courter, demanded stamps.

That parcel was addressed to—well, it contained a present for a young woman. Binks particularly wanted her to receive it the following morning; but the girl in the postoffice thought otherwise.

"Can't take that parcel," she said, abruptly. "It isn't sealed."

"Then, I wonder, would you seal it for me?" asked Binks.

"No," replied the girl; "that isn't my job."

Binks said nothing. He merely took up a telegraph form, and wrote:

"Sorry cannot send package. Very pretty girl in postoffice won't take it because not sealed."

A moment later string and sealing-wax were forthcoming, and the parcel caught the post.—London Tit Bits.

Worth the Risk

SNOW was falling heavily outside, and the young teacher was warning her class of the dangers of catching cold.

"Yes," she remarked, "you must be careful, now that the real cold weather has come. Last winter my little brother went out with his sled and caught such a bad cold that he has never got properly well again. He has to live in the south and must never come back again in the winter! Isn't that a terrible thing to happen?"

The pupils looked sympathetic—all save one, who demanded:

"Please, teacher, where's his sled?"

Discovered

A MAN of diminutive proportions sat down at the restaurant table.

"I want some salad," he said.

"What kind, shrimp?" asked the waiter.

"Don't get funny with me, young man!"

New York Day by Day
O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Stiver's Row is the Mayfair of Harlem's Black Belt. It is a row of fine homes, originally designed by Stanford White, on One Hundred and Thirty-ninth street, running westward from Lenox avenue and offers an aristocratic area perhaps never achieved by colored people the world over.

Here may be found the creme de la creme or perhaps the cafe au lait of Harlem's sepia society. There are homes where butlers in uniform answer the ring at the door. And there are maids in white caps and aprons as a part of the household personnel.

Most of the houses have neatly clipped front yards with iron fences, and one flaunts a port-cochere. It is one of the few streets left in New York where spreading trees dot the edge of the sidewalk and almost overlap in the middle of the street.

The occupier of one house is a Negro said to have made a half million in a kink cure. Along the pavement may be seen mezzo tinted ladies with their Pekes, Poms and other fashionable kiyoodles. Liveried chauffeurs in charge of luxurious limousines at the curb are not unusual.

There is a legend it requires an income of at least $5,000 a year to reside on "The Row." Among its residents are the foremost colored physicians and surgeons, voice teachers, authors, stage luminaries and others who have prospered. Florence Mills was preparing to buy a mansion there.

There is nothing gaudy about the section. It is as architecturally and decoratively sedate as Murray Hill. On Sunday morning there are silk hats and frock coats and many of the children are in charge of neat-looking nursemaids.

It is on "The Row" that many whites in evening dress are entertained for dinner and which provided much of the local color for the intermingling theme in a recent best seller novel. Yet now and then at the windows will be seen an old mammy type with a bandanaed head or an Old Black Joe with frizzed white hair, seemingly a little bewildered by the change.

New York is notorious for puttering with streets. Somebody in the city administration decides five feet should come off of the buildings on say Fifty-third street—and the hacking begins. Homes and business houses are upset for a year and so are surrounding streets, but a lot of voters get work and it comes under the head of progress. One cannot walk five blocks in New York without finding a street torn up and people, if they ask me, are getting pretty tired of it.

* * *

I like to get mad that way. It inflates me with the importance of a high civic zeal and doesn't accomplish a dura thing.

* * *

Also I do not want to become one of those "Vox Populi" pests who bombard city hall with epistolary sarcasm. And it will probably not mean a whole lot in Mayor Walker's life, but I was kept awake for two hours last night by what sounded suspiciously like a cricket.

A Madison avenue shop offers a perfume exclusively for "Brunettes with a vivid personality." Just more propaganda against the blondes, bless 'em.

New York hears little of its river pirates because they do not attack the citizenry. They fight only among themselves and the pedestrian is always safe on the water front during the darkest hours of the night. The river pirates use motor trucks and pillage ship cargoes. They represent a desperate crew. The most famous of the gangs is The Dooleys. The Chicken Yard Gang is no longer so powerful. It once ruled the water front, but its leaders found more money in bootlegging.

Bernard Sobel, the college instructor who turned press agent, just phoned me he saw a man walking up Fifth avenue wearing lace cuffs. I'm all atwitter!

The Hindmost Throng
By DR. FRANK CRANE

Books that live always have one element in common. It is an understanding of human nature.

Read the Iliad or the Divine Comedy or Don Quixote or Hamlet or the works of the old Biblical writers and you see them sketch in the lines of human nature in their pictures of men and of times.

Listen to sly old Homer thus describe the meeting of Ajax and Hector and their followers on the plains of Troy:

"He, with proud step, protected by his shield,
On every side the hostile ranks surveyed.
If signs of yielding he might trace; but they
Unshaken stood; and with like haughty mien,
Ajax at Hector thus defiance hurled . . .
He said, and led them on; with eager cheers
They followed; shouted loud the hindmost throng."

The hindmost cheer loud; they are farthest from the danger.

Distance lends not only enchantment, but belligerence as well, in the realms of human nature.

Take preachers, for instance. (You might as justly take any other class of people.) In small villages where "high society" is not, it is condemned vigorously; and in big cities where it is, ministers preach against the "narrow-mindedness" characteristic of somewhere else. In Ohio they sock the Mormons and in Utah they sock something equally remote.

The story of Joan of Arc is the story of followers that believed in her mission when she was carrying everything before her and who began to grumble and doubt as soon as she met a reverse in fortune.

They shouted loudest when they were farthest from defeat.

Every leader knows the bitterness of this element in human nature. Christ met it time and again and it was one of the things that depressed Him most.

The men who have been valuable have been the ones who could keep on shouting just as loud when they came into the zone of action.

It is a good plan for each of us to spend a little time occasionally checking up on the "causes" we fight for.

If they concern things far removed and for which all of our associates are also fighting, they may be mere causes of the hindmost throng that require little courage to join.

Fighting small evils near at hand often requires more courage than joining the battle against big ones far distant.

Perhaps the courage of the warriors in the van is much stimulated by the shouts of those in the rear, and it is easier to be a hero with the multitude behind you than to be a hero alone. But it might be well for the advance squad to keep in mind that those who are riding far behind them are hardly the ones who could take their place in the doubtful ridges of the battle.

Right Angles
By ALEXANDER CAIRNS

Poor Fellow

AMONG my friends are several who sometimes fell foul of the law and did time within the loveless walls of prisons.

I hold these friendships in a ratio of about five to one in comparison with those of the bromide type who have neither faults nor features.

Nor in this do I condone crime or countersign the counterfeiter. I mean only this, that life is enriched by contact with varied human types, and men with prison pallor are unusual personalities.

Suppose we call him Unlucky, for that he was, actually if not cognominally. One of his buildings, insured to the hilt, burned mysteriously, and the soft-voiced sheriff got him on a charge of arson. And he of the judicial ermine laid on a fine of $1,000 in the coin of the realm.

His uncle, Goldbags, a Nero of dollars, who corrals a prancing million annually, was a bystander through the trial and speculated silently on the mischances of chancery. And as they neared the fifth act and the curtain, Goldbags said to Unlucky:

"Right or wrong, innocent or guilty, his honor will smother you with a fine. A Houdini couldn't escape from the tangle you're in. No matter what the fine may be come to me and I'll let you have the money. And I'll throw in some ten thousand to set you on your feet again."

And my friend, Unlucky, thought he was just about to entrain, or enplane, for a non-stop flight to Paradise. But when he pulled the knocker of Goldbags' ponderous door that unworthy asked a mortgage on his home, another on his brother's home and ditto for his cousin.

And Unlucky shook a simoon of the Goldbag premises from his sandals and turned elsewhere for help. Poor fellow!

But curb your steed a minute! Which was the poor fellow, Unlucky or Goldbags? Both? Assuredly, but the poorer of the pair and the more degenerate was Goldbags. For greed is a truer label of degeneracy than incendiarism. Goldbags, like Tamerlane, built his monument of the scalls of his victims.

And it is a slovenly use of language to say that he owned millions. Rather say that millions owned him to the last kink in his shriveled soul and the last thought in his avarice-damned mind.

His retreat from idealism was marked by more wreckage than strewed the exodus of Napoleon from Moscow. By mortgage foreclosures and not shavings and all the pretzel chicanery of sub rosa finance he had moved like a juggernaut to his putrid affluence.

And now he is a lost soul in the only true sense of that term. I challenge all the sleuths of the shadows to find his soul. It is lost. Shake the brush for clues and set the bloodhounds on the scent and you shall never serve a habeas corpus on that soul. It is lost!

Poor fellow!
